British Robot Plane Is Success

Federal Election Expected Then; Stevens' Manifesto Friday Afternoon

Ottawa, July 10.—While official intimation is still lacking, September 23 is now regarded as a likely date for the general election. It will fall on a Monday, the day provided for in the Dominion Elections Act, and it seems probable an earlier Monday in the month would be chosen. The first Monday in the month will be Labor Day, which could not be an election day and would probably not be chosen for nomination day.

Dr. C. C. Hoefflin demonstrates New Vaccine Before Veterinarians

Inoculating a hatching egg to keep chickens free from disease was an intensely interesting demonstration given by Dr. C. C. Hoefflin, formerly of Berns University, Switzerland, but now residing here, to members of the Pacific Northwest Veterinary Medical Association when they visited the clinic of Dr. H. J. and G. H. Keown in the city yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Hoefflin, who has spent ten years of research and experiment on this subject, believes that the results of the treatment will be far reaching. Fowls and animals will grow to maturity free from practically all diseases. Moreover, the doctor hopes in time to develop a vaccine for human beings which would be used in much the same manner and would act in the manner of other vaccines only it would not relate to any specific disease but would be a preventative for all types of illness.

In the demonstration before the animal doctors, Dr. Hoefflin drilled holes in many eggs with a small trocar. Then he introduced the non-specific vaccine into the living chick embryo by means of a hypodermic needle and sealed up the orifice with collodion.

Dr. Hoefflin exhibited pairs of three-week-old chickens, five-week-old ducks and ten-week-old ducks, one of each pair having grown from an egg treated with vaccine. In every case the vaccinated birds were healthier in appearance and almost twice the size of their untreated mates.

Other demonstrations performed at the Keown's clinic was a means of detecting tuberculosis and other germs in beef by Dr. C. C. Chase, chief meat inspector of Portland; a major operation on small animals by Dr. R. G. Outburt of Vancouver, and a cryptorchid operation on a horse by Dr. R. H. Wenger, dean of the Washington State Veterinary College.

SHAKE-DOWN AT ROCKCLIFFE

Canadian Press

Ottawa, July 10.—The showdown on the "work or leave" order put in effect at the Rockcliffe relief camp to-day resulted in 138 strikers being ejected.

The men were transported in trucks, to the capital, five miles from the Ottawa air station where the camp is situated.

The men left the trucks at the city limits and trekked into the city, a problem for the city and province after they had left Department of National Defence jurisdiction.

The camp clean-up was made without disorder. Relief workers elected to stay at Rockcliffe and Penetanguishen, Ont., thirty miles farther east, and accept a call to resume work this afternoon, numbered 465.

The Penetanguishen camp, as well as Rockcliffe, is under the direction of Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey, officer commanding the Ottawa air station. There was no strike at Penetanguishen, where 108 relief workers were quartered.

Segregation of men who signified their intention to work and those who continued to strike took three hours.

INSTRUCTIONS READ
More than 300 of the men paraded on the athletic field where Wing Commander Godfrey read them "the latest instructions" from Department of National Defence headquarters, promised immediate attention to complaints made regarding housing and meat supplies, and full protection for those who wanted to stay.

Of the 300 who heard the commander only twenty-four voted to continue the strike.

Meanwhile 200 additional men remained in their quarters, refusing to treat with the camp officials.

Immediate round-up of these men began. Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers were stationed at each hut and cottage where the men refused to come out. A detachment of 400 men patrolled the camp.

The Royal Canadian Air Force personnel of the station, numbering ninety officers and men, were deployed at strategic points.

VISITED EACH HUT
Wing Commander Godfrey, accompanied by R.C.M.P. Inspector A. T. Belcher, made a personal visit to each hut and cottage.

He explained the situation to each group of men in turn.

Those who elected to stay went to the athletic field. The others were paraded to the pay office, got their time and were placed in the trucks.

A single mounted policeman and an airman as driver accompanied each truck to the capital.

The wing commander addressed the remaining men on the athletic field. He said:

"You men who have remained loyal to the camp are now free to go to your quarters or elsewhere in the camp."

"Dinner will be served as usual."

WORK IN AFTERNOON
"You will be asked to resume work at 1 p.m."

"You can be sure I will do my utmost for each of you to secure outside employment."

The men applauded.

It was a direct contrast to the boos and shouts of derision with which the strikers had ridden off in the trucks, shouting, "Seabee Rats!" and other epithets at the men who remained.

"I can't deal with your demands regarding wages and allowances. That is a matter of government policy," the commander said.

"Regarding your complaints about housing, better facilities will be provided. Your quarters will be enlarged."

"Complaints about food have been investigated. When meat of poor quality has been received it was sent back to the contractors. That will be continued. There will be the strictest check made on the quality of the meat."

MAYOR'S REPORT
Toronto, July 10 (Canadian Press).—Mayor P. J. Nolan of Ottawa told members of the Ontario Mayors' Association, in conference here to-day with representatives of the Ontario government, there had been no "agitation" among relief camp workers at the Rockcliffe Airport until Rev. S. B. East of Regina arrived there.

Mr. Nolan reviewed conditions at the camp, which he visited yesterday, and told the mayors and Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn "there was no agitation at the camp until he (Mr. East) arrived."

Ethiopia Calls For Council Of League
To Act

These letters went to the Belgian minister and to the French minister, who also represents Sweden and Denmark.

The Italian arbitrators at Scheveningen, Holland, insisting discussion be confined to actual blame for the Uluat border clash in which thirty Italians and 115 Ethiopians were reported killed, declined yesterday to listen to Ethiopia's contention that Uluat is situated in Ethiopian territory.

Canadian Press from Havas
London, July 10.—Control by Italy of the hinterland of Ethiopia, and firing of an Italian political and trade zone of influence alone will satisfy the home government and avoid the threat of war.

This was the revelation which Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to Great Britain, was understood to have made to the British government.

Ambassador Grandi was in close touch with the Foreign Office yesterday and it was believed he made clear all the points on which Italy would demand a peaceful settlement of the dispute with Emperor Haile Selassie.

He conferred also with Joseph A. C. Avenol, secretary-general of the League of Nations, and it was believed he emphasized the same points to the League officials.

Italy, Grandi also told the British government, wants to control suppression of the slave trade in the Ethiopian kingdom.

MORE TIME NEEDED
It is not believed here that Italy is ready yet for its attack on Emperor Haile Selassie's kingdom. The Daily Telegraph asserted Premier Mussolini had listened to the advice of his general headquarters staff that 400,000 men are required in East Africa before the campaign should begin.

Less than half that number have been transported to the Italian colonies in the last three months. Some credence was given to this report since Emperor Haile Selassie's reserves are estimated at 400,000.

A shortage of drinking water was cited as one of the serious handicaps to the Italian army in Ethiopia.

MORE TROOPS
Rome, July 10.—Italy advanced to 120,000 to-day its roster of troops designed to drive for an "inescapable" victory over the empire of Ethiopia.

Authoritative sources said Premier Benito Mussolini's first command, with the break-up of the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission, will create two new troop divisions for action in East Africa.

Non-commissioned officers and specialist soldiers of the military classes of 1090 and 1910 already hastened to colors in response to a fresh official order.

Another large contingent of specialists from the class of 1912 was ordered to report July 20 for duty.

D'ANNUNZIO WRITES
The famous warrior poet, Gabriele D'Annunzio, wrote to Argentina Lazarratto, Fascist federal secretary who has volunteered for African service:

"You are going to victory. It is so inexorable—I wish to say fatal—to conquer and to win. The picture of the new greatness cannot be completed without a real Roman triumph against barbarity and against an alliance of barbarism."

WAR "INEVITABLE"
London, July 10.—London and Paris to-day accepted warfare between Italy and Ethiopia as inevitable, although the British government still hoped for some eleventh-hour development that would avert hostilities.

Grave concern for the future of the League of Nations and the whole laborious "collective security" system was expressed in both the British and French capitals, as diplomatic efforts to settle the dispute reached a complete impasse.

This was heightened when Ethiopia was reported demanding immediate convocation of the League council.

The British government, polishing off the declaration to be made in the House of Commons to-morrow, still and the present islands, including Krakatoa, are peaks formed within the great crater ring.

On August 27, 1883, the whole northern and lower portion of Krakatoa, rising 26,623 feet above the sea, blew away. It was estimated the column of stones, dust and ashes shot up at least seventeen miles.

DAY BECAME NIGHT
At Batavia, 100 miles away, the day was turned into night by the ashes. Lamps had to be lighted in the homes.

The blast created a world-wide atmospheric upheaval. The atmospheric wave traveled outward from the volcano half-way around the world. The wave then was "reflected," returning in its original direction. Some authorities estimated this world-wide oscillation of atmosphere occurred seven times.

HEARD 3,000 MILES
The actual sound of the explosion was heard, as far as 3,000 miles away. The dust was carried over the United States to the east and over Asia and Europe to the west.

The sea waves created by the explosion are known to have reached Cape Horn, 7,818 miles away, and many authorities believed the water effects were felt even in the English Channel, 11,040 miles away.

adhered to the stand that settlement must be on a collective basis.

Canadian Press from Havas
Rome, July 10.—Italian newspapers on the eve of the important meeting of the British cabinet and the House of Commons debate to-day warned Great Britain to adopt a "hands-off" policy in the dispute with Ethiopia.

The semi-official Giornale d'Italia reminded Great Britain she is mistress of half the world and should not deny to Italy a "place in the sun," especially when Italian aims do not menace British interests.

Canadian Press
London, July 10.—The cabinet met to-day to discuss the grave Italo-Ethiopian crisis. To-morrow Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare will make a statement to the House of Commons on the British position.

Great Britain is keeping all the Dominions informed of the situation. So far Britain has not ordered any of her nationals in Ethiopia to leave the country.

Gravity of the situation of course does not lie in East Africa alone. It challenges the existence of the League of Nations and the whole system of non-aggression and security pacts painfully negotiated over years of effort.

"JUNGLE LAW"
"It," commented The London Daily Herald, "Italy does deliberately resort to war in violation of her covenant, in order to steal the Ethiopian land, if the League, because certain League powers choose to be accessories to the crime, fails to do its duty, then the League dies, and with it the whole system of 'collective security.' The world reverts to that 'jungle law' which means not merely war in East Africa but war and the danger of war everywhere and for all time."

The issue at stake is not the future of Ethiopia. It is the future of civilization.

July 13 Set For Japan's Levy On Canadian Trade

TENTH OF TOTAL TRADE
British Columbia's total sales on all foreign markets run to about $50,000,000 a year, so that the wiping out of the Japanese lumber market will cut off approximately one-tenth of the entire foreign trade.

Unless the lumber industry is able to find other markets to take up the loss in Japan, curtailing of production will follow, causing loss of jobs for about 3,000 men, it was estimated to-day. This falling off, as a matter of fact, has already set in, lumbermen say, because Japanese importers, anticipating the new tariff, stopped placing lumber orders in British Columbia six weeks ago.

It was pointed out that even if Japan ceases buying lumber and paper products from British Columbia, this province will still retain its favorable trade balance with that country. The province buys only $1,000,000 worth of goods annually from Japan and would retain its market for fish, sine and lead.

GOVERNMENT'S ACTION
Premier Pattullo recently conferred with lumbermen on the situation, and made representations to Premier Bennett urging a settlement.

STRIKERS SENT UP FOR TRIAL
Number Before Magistrate in Regina on Charges Growing Out of Riot

Regina, July 10.—A striker who was a Mounted Policeman's steel helmet during Dominion Day rioting here, was identified as Kellett Cole, Regina, when he appeared in city police court to face a charge of inciting to riot.

Cole was committed for trial along with five others who appeared in city police court yesterday. Two dozen others were on the city police docket this morning. Other cases remain to be tried in R.C.M.P. court.

According to Detective Snuggs of the Regina city police, Cole told him he had figured in rioting in Vancouver before the relief strikers came to Regina. Cole had been hurt in the head and spent a week in Vancouver hospital.

Among those committed for trial is Joe Mottl, Coleman, Alta. police witnesses said they saw Mottl kick R.C.M.P. Constable Alfred Francis after the mountie had been knocked to the ground in the battle at the Market Square.

"He was kicked by about four or five men in the crowd," said Constable Rutz, Winnipeg.

REVOLVERS NOT LOADED
Constable Hutz said R.C.M.P. men did not carry loaded revolvers.

To-day's docket in city police court was boosted to forty-eight cases, twenty-seven of these being on remand.

Sidney James Lumsden, Lethbridge, was committed for trial on a charge of rioting.

Sidney Stevens, another striker alleged to have kicked a policeman as he lay on the ground, was committed for trial on a rioting charge.

Other cases were scheduled for hearing during the afternoon.

OPINION OF MACINNIS
Canadian Press
Winnipeg, July 10.—Whatever success the newly-formed party headed by Hon. H. H. Stevens had in the general election, Angus MacInnis, labor member in the House of Commons for Vancouver South, was satisfied to-day it would not be at the expense of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

The C.C.F. would be the next official opposition when the elections were over, he told a mass meeting here yesterday evening.

Fingerprint
At Kidnap Trial

Tacoma Jury Told Marks on Light Bulb Made By Mrs. Waley

Associated Press

Tacoma, July 10.—The government scored a point to-day when A. M. Kohn, federal fingerprint expert from Washington, D.C. identified as Mrs. Margaret Thulin Waley's a fingerprint on an electric light globe from the attic of the Spokane "hide-out house" in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnap case.

In Mrs. Waley's statement on arrest in Salt Lake City she denied ever being in the attic. Courtroom spectators recalled that on his release for $200,000, June 1, little George Weyerhaeuser said he once heard someone moving around upstairs while he was imprisoned in the house, and once he heard a woman laughing and talking.

The witness had not got to a fingerprint found on an empty pork and bean can in the hideaway in Spokane when court recessed.

Assistant District Attorney Owen P. Hughes handed the jurymen the official fingerprint records of Mrs. Waley, her husband, Harmon, serving a forty-five-year sentence after pleading guilty to the kidnap charge, and of the little abduction victim, who is scheduled to be a government witness.

Manifeto From C.C.F. Next Week
Ottawa, July 10.—The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation is planning to issue its election manifesto next week, probably Monday, it was learned to-day. The C.C.F. issued a statement covering aims of the party some months ago. At the time J. S. Woodsworth, M.P.P. leader, announced in the House that had been wrongly interpreted as a manifesto, but that one would be made public shortly after the session closed.

POLICE TOLD OF ASSAULTS
Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 10.—Overnight activities of pickets of striking longshoremen here led to assaults on three waterfront workers and the arrest of three men. Windows were broken in a worker's home and pickets were reported guarding several other houses.

Two daughters of a working longshoreman, with carefully aimed rocks, drove a number of pickets from their homes.

Arrested are James Milroy, charged with intimidating a worker, and David Anderson and Bert Howell, charged with assault.

Anderson and Howell were arrested early to-day when a waterfront worker was beaten by two men who followed him to Main and Hastings Streets. Another workman was beaten by two pickets at Carroll and Cordova Streets, and a third was beaten by three pickets on Cordova.

Police have received numerous reports of interference with waterfront workers. In some cases the workers turned the tables to administer a beating to attackers.

Several workers or their families have complained they have been threatened or that their homes are being picketed.

British Are Watching
Canada Wheat Moves

28 shillings and 6 pence for No. 1 Northern Manitoba.

"Everything is in the melting pot. The only British point we have is that the Argentine surplus is smaller than last year—only 5,000,000 quarters against 15,000,000 for the previous year."

DIFFICULTIES REPORTED
The situation on the Baltic (London) and Liverpool exchanges has now passed beyond the stage of a mere market setback, and has become something more serious," said the Financial News of London editorially.

"Both markets were disturbed yesterday by reports of difficulties, one of the firms mentioned being a prominent firm trading in London and Liverpool. The sum reported to be involved, although it does not compare with figures in the recent commodity market failures, is nevertheless large. It is not yet certain whether these difficulties will be overcome."

"The time has come when the Canadian government must give a definite statement of its future policy. Trading in actual wheat as opposed to options is of course at a complete standstill. With the Winnipeg price down to the peg, and still out of alignment with world prices, millers could hardly be expected to treat the quotations for No. 1 Manitoba, for instance, seriously. Opinion is almost universal that the peg will be placed at some lower figure, if not removed altogether."

"Until John I. McFarland (Canadian government wheat adviser) or the new grain board makes some announcement the present damaging uncertainty must continue."

PRECARIOUS CONDITION
The London News-Chronicle, in its finance notes, said: "The situation of the wheat market is likely to remain delicate, even precarious, for some time to come. The Canadian Wheat Pool holds nearly 280,000,000 bushels, which it purchased at a minimum price of 80 cents a bushel. At the present level of prices in Liverpool this wheat is worth no more than 40 cents, so that on current valuation the pool has a book loss of around $100,000,000 to face."

"It is understood the Canadian government contemplates liquidation of these stocks will extend over a long period, but until they are finally disposed of they must remain as a continuing threat to the stability of the market."

NO DUMPING, SAYS BENNETT
Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 10.—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett yesterday repeated what he said in the Commons last Thursday, that it would not be the policy of the government to dump Canadian wheat surplus on the market or to offer it at "fire sale prices."

Asked to comment on a dispatch from London relative to "tenseness" on the London and Liverpool wheat market because of uncertainty over the disposal of the Dominion's surplus, Mr. Bennett would not add to the statement he made in the House.

CRUISE PARTY SAFE IN CUBA
Batabano, Cuba, July 10.—His search for buried treasure frustrated by engine trouble, M. C. Rice of Toronto and his family rested here to-day after nine exhausting days adrift in the Caribbean Sea.

His crippled fifty-foot ketch, Casarao, was towed here yesterday by the Cuban gunboat Santa Clara. With Rice were his wife, their two sons and Elbert James of Daytona Beach, Fla., engineer.

Rice did not announce what his future plans were.

Building Plans
For U.S. Navy

Twelve Destroyers, Six Submarines and Perhaps Battleships Next Year

Washington, July 10.—Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson announced to-day that the navy's building programme for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1936, would include twelve destroyers and six submarines, and possibly a battleship.

He explained at a press conference that under the Vinson Act fifty-four warships—thirty-six destroyers and eighteen submarines—would be required to bring the fleet to treaty strength by 1943.

Mr. Swanson reiterated that no decision had been reached on a proposal to replace one of the seven battleships which will be covered by expiration of the Washington treaty December 31, 1936.

Construction could start on it January 1, 1937, he added, but he emphasized the navy was "not starting any competition."

Both leaders are keeping closely in touch with political development.

STEVENS PARTY
The manifesto of the new political party he will lead will be concise but clear in a statement of about 3,000 words, Hon. H. H. Stevens stated.

"It will be announced in Friday afternoon papers I fully expect," the former Trade Minister added.

"I am flooded with wires and letters of support which come from all over the country," he told newspaper correspondents and hurried on with his work.

When the manifesto is given out the people will learn the name of the new party.

Calgary, July 10.—Entry of the Alberta Social Credit League into the Dominion field will be made at Leo B. Biche, Alta., July 26, when a nominating convention will choose a candidate for the Athabasca federal riding, according to an announcement by Charles Gould, manager of the Edmonton Social Credit office.

MARINE BLOCK PLANS RUSHED

Architects Will Be Ready For Tenders By Latter Part of August

Tenders for the construction of Victoria's new marine building will be called by the latter part of next month, and the contract should be placed and actual construction under way by the middle of September, C. Elwood Watkins, architect, who is working jointly with J. Graham Johnson, on the project, announced on his return Monday from Ottawa, where he submitted sketch plans for the approval of the government.

Mr. Watkins this morning said that he and Mr. Johnson will start immediately on the working drawings for the building. These will take a month or six weeks to prepare, and contractors will then be asked to figure on the contract.

The cost of the Marine Building, it is estimated, will be in the neighborhood of $500,000, the sum of $300,000 having been voted in the supplementary estimates to get the project launched.

HEIGHT NINETY-FOUR FEET

The structure, as previously announced, will rise to a height of eighty-four feet, two of which will be below the level of Wharf Street. The total floor area will be 71,348 square feet. The first three floors will be eighty-five feet by 132 feet, and after the third floor the building will be stepped back from the harbor side; to make the succeeding five floors fifty-six feet by 132 feet. The actual height of the structure above Wharf Street will be seventy-four feet, while on the water side it will be about ninety-four feet.

The building will be of steel frame and reinforced concrete construction, and will be of sufficient strength to carry two additional stories, if necessary.

All federal government offices now scattered about the city will be housed in the new building with the marine department occupying the major space.

BOOT THROWN; RESCUE FOLLOWS

Dallas, Tex., July 10.—J. A. Posey tumbled into 100 feet of water in a huge tank here and H. Duncan fell in trying to rescue Posey.

While it was a pious, Posey finally decided to jump off a boat and toss it over the tank wall as a plea for help. It worked. The boat fell near another workman who notified the fire department. Rescues followed.

WORKING NOW ON INFIRMARY

Granting of a permit by the city building inspectors department yesterday officially marked commencement of renovation work on the old nurses' home of the Jubilee Hospital. The building is being transformed to provide special accommodation to the city's aged infirm at a cost of $15,000. The work is being done to follow out council action in supporting Alderman J. D. Hunter's move for consolidation of the city's ill indigent.

Citizens' League Plan Advocated

Sir James MacBrien, R.C. M.P. Head, Makes Suggestion For All Canada

Canadian Press
Calgary, July 10.—Formation of a citizens' league throughout Canada to support law and order is advocated by Sir James MacBrien, commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Such a league, Sir James said in an address to the Alberta Military Institute yesterday, could give valuable moral support to the police in enforcing the laws of the country and physical support if such should become necessary.

Sir James said a citizens' league had been in existence in Vancouver since 1920. It was giving splendid moral support to the police, he added.

A newspaper report last week said a group of Calgary business men were considering the formation of a citizens' league in the city.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF BOOST

Legislature Asked to Save
Textile Market For U.S.;
Big Japanese Gains

Associated Press
Manila, P.I., July 10.—Pointing to the threatened loss of the entire Philippine textile market by exporters—due to remarkable Japanese gains—Governor General Frank Murphy yesterday asked the Philippine Legislature to increase tariffs promptly as an emergency measure.

In the last two years Japanese exporters have captured more than half of the textile trade with the islands. The Governor-General added his voice to pleas already made by United States exporters who recently dispatched a memorial to the Legislature signed by sixty-five members of Congress. Resolutions are also pending in Congress asking President Roosevelt to act.

NO CAPTURE PLANNED

Associated Press
Manila, July 9.—Assurances Japan has no imperialistic intentions toward the Philippines were voiced here today by a delegation of twelve members of the Japanese Diet. "Unscrupulous propagandists have been spreading a report that Japan plans to grab the Philippines as soon as they become independent," Busuke Iwamoto, lead imperial legislators who entertained the Japanese in the Legislative Building, "Japan has no such intentions."

"All Japan wants is close trade relations."

RALPH WALTERS ASKS RELEASE

Associated Press
Seattle, July 10.—A new fight for freedom has been started by Ralph Walters, forty-six, Auburn stock broker, serving a five to fifteen-year sentence in the state penitentiary for grand larceny.

Prosecuting Attorney Warren G. Magnuson, yesterday received an order from Chief Justice William J. Millard of the state supreme court stating Walters has applied for a writ of habeas corpus, asking his release on the grounds that he is held illegally, and citing the prosecution to appear July 29 with the warden of the penitentiary to show cause why Walters should not be released.

Walters was sentenced June 19, 1933, on his conviction on a charge of having defrauded Merion J. Moes, Auburn farmer, out of $2,450.

CONFERENCE ON POWER SUPPLY

Toronto, July 10.—Action of the Ontario government respecting power purchase contracts with Quebec companies will remain in abeyance until Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn confers with Premier L. A. Taschereau of Quebec and later with the power companies.

Premier Hepburn, making this statement yesterday, added the Taschereau conference would not take place until Hon. A. W. Robb, Attorney-General, returns from his vacation. It was Mr. Robb who raised the contract question in the Legislature last session by declaring the contracts "illegal, void and unenforceable."

"We will pay for the surplus power until the contracts are revised," the Premier said after stating the province was still paying for the surplus.

Veterinarians Enjoy Banquet

Social Function of North- western Association of Con- vention Draws Crowd

The social side of the Pacific Northwestern Veterinarian Medical Association Convention came to its peak yesterday evening when 150 members and their ladies gathered in the Tudor room of the Empress Hotel for the annual banquet and dance.

Short witty toasts and a delightful programme of singing and dancing made the evening a most enjoyable affair.

Due to the unavoidable absence of Hon. Dr. F. F. Tolmie through illness, Dr. W. Graham Gilliam, secretary of the convention, occupied the chair and acted as toastmaster.

Dr. E. E. Wegner, Dean of the Veterinary College at Pullman, Washington, proposed the toast to Agriculture. He pointed out that as far as the veterinarians were concerned, they were closely allied to agriculture. He had found that the inspiration for most students at his college was either medicine or agriculture.

The future of veterinary was bright, the doctor declared. There was a splendid outlet in the supervision of public health, which had begun with the inspection of milk, but now extended to many other foods.

Dr. W. A. Gunn, provincial livestock commissioner, replied to Dr. Wegner's toast. Agriculture was the noblest industry, he said, and those employed in it were the simplest, humblest, and yet the finest of mankind.

Of late, agriculture had taken a different outlook, and its products were shipped all over the world, as compared with the localized marketing practiced a few decades ago.

He cited the case of the desert wastes of the prairie which were once pasture lands for vast herds of cattle, and called upon veterinarians to make people realize the need for a balanced livestock programme.

TOAST TO VISITORS

Dr. T. R. R. Hoggan, of Vancouver, in proposing the toast to the visitors, urged the co-operation between the medical profession and the veterinarians.

Dr. C. A. Watson representing the visitors, thanked the association for its hospitality, and declared that veterinary medicine had contributed a great deal to public health. Dr. J. W. Cook, Wilbur, Wash., veteran member of the association, proposed the toast to the ladies.

Mrs. V. C. Paulham of Olympia, Washington, responded.

Mrs. W. A. Gunn delighted the assembled guests with two songs, while the pupils of Florence Clough Dancing School gave an excellent programme which included a Spanish dance, by Thelma Ackerman; Indian dance by Misses Thelma Stratford, Helen Beck and David Webb; a military tap dance by Thelma Ackerman; a ballroom dance by Thelma Stratford; and buck and wing tap dance by Misses Isabel McAlpine and Thelma Stratford.

After the banquet the guests danced to the strains of a popular local orchestra till the early hours of the morning.

Stories in STAMPS

By I. E. Klein

A MAN WHO FIRST FLEW

Far back in the days of Greek fable, Daedalus, a famous architect and sculptor, built a labyrinth for King Minos of Crete. He soon incurred the enmity of the king and was thrown into the labyrinth. Seeking to escape, Daedalus fashioned wings for himself and his son, Icarus, and fastened them to their shoulders with wax. Over the sea to Sicily they flew, but Icarus rose too close to the sun, the wax melted, the wings fell off, and he was drowned. Daedalus, the story goes, arrived safely.

Symbolic of this first flight of man, some of the nations have issued airmail stamps representing Daedalus in flight. The stamp of Hungary is shown here. The latest issue of this type is the new Canadian airmail stamp.

A suggestion that Indian war dances be held at the Athletic Park during Navy Week was considered by the committee.

Ray Long's Death Is Investigated

Beverly Hills, Cal., Officers Say Magazine Editor Committed Suicide

Associated Press
Beverly Hills, Calif., July 10.—Ray Long, once one of the leading magazine editors and publishers of the United States, lay dead today, apparently a suicide victim.

Believed to have been discouraged over the wane of successful literary enterprise that was his for more than a score of years, Long was found fatally wounded yesterday in the bedroom of his Beverly Hills home. Police officers found a small rifle nearby.

Long died a short time later in an emergency hospital as a hurried operation was attempted to save his life.

Known as the man who guided a host of writers to fame and wealth, who translated the public's reading tastes into money-making publications, Long's death was marked by an enigmatic twist. He left no note, as far as could be found, explaining his act.

"There is no doubt it was a suicide," said A. G. Peterson, Beverly Hills officer who investigated the death.

The fifty-seven-year-old executive, who came to California to become story editor for various motion picture studios following a varied and colorful career in New York, had not been feeling well, his housekeeper, Mrs. Helen Andet, said.

Mildred Temple, Long's secretary for fifteen years, could give no reason for his death, and Mrs. Lucy Boyle Long, the widow, said at her home yesterday evening in Greenwich, Conn., that she did not know whether she would come west immediately. She ordered the body cremated.

Long, who guided to prominence such present-day writers as O. O. McIntyre, Peter B. Kyne, Damon Runyon, Ring Lardner and a number of others, had worked in an executive capacity here for Columbia, Fox and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios after rising from the eastern magazine field.

Just last Saturday Long conferred with officials of a newly organized company concerning a contract. The officials later described him as "somewhat beaten down."

Labor Delegates To Meet Sept. 16

Convention Call For Trades Congress of Canada; Halifax Is Scene

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 10.—The fifty-first annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada will begin in Halifax September 16, it was announced here yesterday by Tom Moore, president, and P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer.

"The last year has been an eventful one in the annals of the trade union movement in this Dominion," says Mr. Moore in his convention call.

"Spurred on by public indignation against unfair industrial practices and unsatisfactory social conditions resulting therefrom, . . . the federal government and several provincial legislatures have enacted a number of measures of a remedial character based in the report of the royal commission on price spreads."

"This year's convention affords a valuable opportunity to collectively review this new legislation and reach a decision as to how it can be made to most effectively benefit workers."

"The Battle," Movie Banned in Japan

Canadian Press from Havas
Tokyo, July 10.—Japan yesterday banned the French film "The Battle," known elsewhere as "Thunder in the East," despite the fact it deals with a sweeping Japanese naval victory. The reason given by the Ministry of the Interior was that the film was injurious to the Japanese naval ministry, as well as to the British navy, because it showed a British naval observer aboard a Japanese battleship taking charge during a naval encounter.

NOT GUILTY PLEA SURPRISES COURT

Associated Press
Detroit, July 10.—Merton Ward Goodrich pleaded innocent of the murder of Lillian Gallaher at his arraignment yesterday in recorder's court here.

The plea obviously took the court and crowd of spectators by surprise. Goodrich, his knees shaking, told Judge Thomas M. Cotter he pleaded innocent and wanted the court to name an attorney to defend him. Judge Cotter ordered the former

MISERERE!

THE MONTREAL STAR IS LEADER IN the east of the national government choir, which is largely a choir invisible although its personnel can be guessed. The Star objects to the Stevens irruption, ostensibly on the ground that it adds still another party to the federal campaign, but it may be suspected that the real reason is the further impairment it will effect of the political prospects of the element which revolved around the present federal government whose domination of policy and administration The Star and those it speaks for almost frantically wish to preserve.

Perhaps later the choir may materialize sufficiently to enable us to learn more about it, to discover, for instance, who are its heavy basses, its baritone, its tenors, sopranos and contraltos. We may even be able to see the organist and find out who behind the scenes is pumping wind into the organ—a very old organ because it is invariably hauled up from the basement for service every time a Conservative government, after hanging on to office until the last minute of its constitutional term, is about to collapse at the polls.

At the British Columbia end of the keyboard, The Vancouver Daily Province, is playing the same tune, and on an organ which also has seen better days. Our mainland contemporary likewise chides Mr. Stevens for developing a new party, but more frankly declares that its chief effect will be to undermine further the Bennett government, whose prospects already, it admits, are hopeless. Just why The Vancouver Province should want a national government in view of the record of the Liberal administration from 1921 to 1930 is hard to understand. A reduction of the national debt by $300,000,000; a trade which reached the phenomenal total of $2,600,000,000; taxation, direct and indirect, which was modest in contrast with our present burdens; an unemployment total whose high water mark was 170,000 as compared with an aggregate of nearly a million last year, were outstanding features of a record which no national government could eclipse.

The Vancouver Province has been rather unfortunate in its advocacy of a union administration. It was the chief inspiration of the abortive efforts in that direction made by the Talmie government which, too, by the way, hung on to the end of its five-year term and entirely disappeared at the polls. Our contemporary explains the failure of the Talmie movement by the then Premier's refusal to be guided by its advice, but there is no good reason to believe that he would have been any better off if he had done so, since neither of the other party leaders had the slightest intention of associating himself with the union government proposal. Besides, with all deference to our contemporary, it was Dr. Talmie, not a newspaper, who was leading the government.

The fact that all of the journalistic advocates of a union government at Ottawa wear Conservative labels, conspicuously or otherwise, and that the proposal emerged with very definiteness only since the Bennett administration reached the edge of a precipice—although it just as well could have been made any time during the last emergent five years—carries its own peculiar implications. A national government to them would mean a government dominated by Toryism, as most national governments in Canada as well as Great Britain have been within the last half century. We had one during the war under Premier Borden, and, lo, in the twinkling of an eye, without first consulting the electorate, it became a Conservative government under Premier Meighen. And in a similar twinkling MacDonald has given way to Baldwin in Britain. That precisely is what Conservative newspapers which now are pounding this theme in Canada would expect to happen again.

JAPAN'S ECONOMIC FLIGHT

WHILE JAPAN CONTINUES HER MILITARY adventure in North China at an enormous expense to the island empire, Finance Minister Korekiyo Takahashi at home is telling the militaristic party that the extension of the country's imperialistic programme threatens a grave economic collapse.

The Minister has stated bluntly that Japan has nearly reached her limit in bond absorption. The war party argues, in its stern determination to go on with its military plans, that there is no such thing as economic collapse. "If one goes bankrupt, one can always start afresh," Having to sell the bonds, Takahashi, a dispatch from Tokyo tells us, "shakes his head."

The Finance Minister puts Japan's national wealth at 110,000,000,000 yen (about $30,000,000,000 at present exchange rates). The national income is 10,000,000,000 yen (about $2,800,000,000). The limit of the country's internal government bond issues is 10,000,000,000 yen, and the present bond issues total 8,650,000,000 yen. He has told the war party that government issues now are nick-named "deficit bonds" and "red ink" bonds. To all of this the militarists reply that the international situation is too grave to permit economies in their departments. Japanese public opinion, however, is that the country has been warned it is a case of "rule or ruin."

M. Takahashi, moreover, has urged the militarist party to consent to Russian proposals for a Russo-Japanese peace plan whereby the two countries could demobilize about 2,000,000 troops, now kept under arms to defend their common frontier.

Shrewd economic observers, of course, more than two years ago predicted the development of an economic situation such as Finance Minister Takahashi now sees near unless the militarists very substantially reduce their demands for money. The war party, however, appears to be firmly in control, and it will be interesting to watch how long it can continue its operations on its present scale. It would seem to be digging its own grave, bringing the country down into the hole with it.

THE BEST SAFEGUARD

AT THE MEETING LAST MONTH AT St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., a gathering convened to discuss problems common to Canada and the United States, Mr. John W. Dufoe, the able editor of The Winnipeg Free Press, urged the value of free speech and free newspapers in the two countries as the only effective defence against Communism on the one hand and some form of nationalistic Fascism on the other.

Mr. Dufoe took the stand that both in Canada and the United States the desire for effective measures to deal with depression have tended to make many people interested in effective action rather than "hard won" freedom. The Winnipeg editor freely acknowledged the weakness and relative ineffectiveness of democracy; but he insisted that these weaknesses were infinitely preferable to an efficiency generated under the conditions of loss of freedom represented by either Communism or Fascism.

The editor of The Winnipeg Free Press touched the right spot when he implied there must be real freedom. It is a commonplace to talk about the soap-box orators at the Marble Arch end of Hyde Park in London, England. Nevertheless, at that spot "spouters" by the dozen get off their pet ideas and go away on the shank end of a Sunday afternoon fully convinced that they have rendered a great public service.

If we confined these sentiments up in an unwholesome garret, with police outside, we would be merely promoting a violent reaction. As Mr. Dufoe says, let there be a proper recognition of the "value of free speech and free newspapers" as the most efficient bulwark against every form of reaction.

THE PEACE PALACE

IT IS RATHER A TRAGIC THING THAT the commission seeking to avert war between Italy and Ethiopia should have to confess failure at Scheveningen in Holland.

Scheveningen is only about four miles from The Hague, the Netherlands capital, and when Andrew Carnegie built the Peace Palace—known to Hollanders as the Huis in den Bosch—he little thought that in this year of grace, 1935, it would be impossible for such a civilized nation as Italy to compose her differences with Ethiopia.

This is the state of affairs to-day. Premier Mussolini appears to be adamant in his military adventure.

Probably Andrew Carnegie, and other men who have given of their wealth and talents, might have gone to the South Sea Islands and similar remote parts of the globe to explode the twentieth century idea of civilization had he known at what value his munificence was assessed.

GOING UP

IT IS NOT DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND why the Disarmament Conference required three years to do nothing when it is realized that last year the nations spent $500,000,000 more for what is called "national defence" than they did in 1933.

This is the fact revealed by the latest armaments year book issued by the League of Nations, which shows, too, among other things, that Soviet Russia's army is a very great deal larger than the armies of the other leading powers. It is computed at nearly 1,000,000 men, but this takes no account of reserves and non-territorial forces.

All this concern and spending for "national defence" springs from the present state of the world's unrest, suspicion generally, and all the nations' fear of attack or of inevitably being drawn in if war should break out.

If this huge increase in the expenditure for "national defence" is allowed to continue, the annual outlay soon will reach the $6,000,000,000 mark; this at a time when at least three continental European countries are on the brink of financial disaster—Italy, Germany, and France.

An increase, in one year, of $500,000,000 on armaments when there is a wholesale default in payments on account of the last war, is a striking commentary on the quality of statesmanship as the world has it to-day.

Japan is viewing the Italian-Ethiopian situation with "great concern." There is a considerable colony of Japanese in Abyssinia growing cotton and in recent years Japan has been devoting marked attention to Abyssinian development. She has no desire to see Italy conquer the country and oust her interests there.

This, however, is a case of the pot calling the kettle black, for Mussolini proposes to do to the African kingdom exactly what Japan did to China and for precisely the same reasons. If the conquest of Manchuria had been sternly opposed by the League of Nations, Italy might not now be sending troops to Africa.

NO PICTURES OF LAMB CHOPS

"No more cameras while I'm eating," Mayor LaGuardia of New York to the camera boys: "It isn't the flash of the bulb or the noise, or the posing at times for your shots I object to. Your mayor must be pictured, and oft I expect to. You may take me, while praying Or corner stone laying, Or unto some bigwig extending a greeting. You may step up and mug me, While chorus girls hug me, But never again must you shoot while I'm eating."

"Never more shall I stand for the click and the flash Of your photograph trade while I'm working on hash. And never again in this hazardous life Shall you catch me again with the peas on my knife. Take me laughing or weeping, Or restfully sleeping, Sneak up and get me at dawn when I wake, Take me riding or swimming, Or finger nails trimming, But me and my lamb chops must never be taken."

"For publicity purposes pictures are useful, But, boys, there's a limit! I warn you, be heedful! You may take me at times with some strange-looking group, But never again while I'm taking in soup. You may take me silk-hatted And costumed and spatted, While wielding a gavel or pressing a button; Take me going or coming, In high life or slumming, But never again while I'm working on mutton."

SOUND OF BATTLE

AND NOW COMES the sound of a battle on the wind, the first tinkle of sword on steel, the first groans of the wounded, the first cries of the deserter, the first thud of marching feet. Canada is already in the first stages of a general election. Can't you feel the thrill of it? Aren't your emotions shaken to their depths by the realization that shortly you will exercise the sacred right of franchise, for which your fathers bled and died from the Battle of Marston Moor in England to the fight on the absentee vote in Victoria? Or are they?

Great issues hang now on your decision, oh mighty elector. You will soon decide the future of the nation for years to come. You will determine whether your country is to go right, left or staggering from side to side, as it has been doing for some time without any real sense of direction, like a fellow coming home from Requiem of a Saturday evening.

Yours is the awful decision, yours the fate of the marching armies, yours the control of your own destiny, yours the mastery of your soul. From now until election day, your word is the law and your verdict final. After that no one will pay the slightest attention to you until the next election rolls around. You had better enjoy your little half-hour of glory while you may.

GHASTLY NOISES

BUT LIST now to the sounds of war. What is that thunder on the right? 'Tis the sound of Mr. Bennett expressing his opinion of Mr. Stevens behind the closed doors of the East Block.

What is that cheering on the left? 'Tis the sound of Liberals who are being handed victory on a silver platter, all garlanded with parsley and mushrooms, but will find it a less palatable dish than they expected once they have consumed it.

What is that painful, retching sound on every hand? Ah, avert the eyes, merciful elector, from such a horrid and obscene sight. 'Tis the Conservative Party turning itself inside out and back again as it tries to run with Mr. Stevens and hunt with Mr. Bennett. And do not peer through the keyholes of many a home here beside you, many a mansion on Rockland Avenue and many a humble cottage in Spanish, for the ghastly spectacle within will turn the strongest stomach, the spectacle of rich Conservatives and poor, in the very act of swallowing himself.

And what is this great sound of rushing wind and wild, warm, animate air, ever moving and swirling in a tornado of words, promises, policies, reforms—most of them contradictory, few of them possible, none of them ever touching the real problems of the times? 'Tis the deep-baying, many-throated voice of politics in election times. 'Tis the mental process of a great people quietly thinking things out. 'Tis that crystal-clear thing called public opinion. It is your voice, elector, and I hope you like it.

CONFERENCE

MR. STEVENS'S announcement of his new party, it is stated in The Canadian Press dispatch, was given out at "a press conference." This is a glorious phrase contrived by cunning hands to throw a glamour over dull things, to give an air of importance to the most banal transactions. The word "conference," indeed, is one of the most abused and vilified in the language. It means a conference. Now it means anything, or rather nothing. If the boss is busy talking over his golf score with his assistant, he's "in conference." If a cabinet minister doesn't want to see you he is invariably "in conference."

SIDE GLANCES

By George Clark

"Say! I thought we agreed not to see each other any more."

"In conference" has become the great just-sound phrase of modern manners, and when anyone uses it, you may be pretty sure the conference in question doesn't amount to anything. "Press conference" is the latest variation of the term. Up to Mr. Roosevelt's time a public man, from the President downwards, would meet the newspaper boys for a chat. But under Mr. Roosevelt it became a press conference, though no one ever conferred, and presently "press conferences" sprang up like weeds from one end of the continent to the other, from the White House at Washington, D.C., to the Parliament Buildings at Victoria, B.C.

Don't be fooled by it. Don't be awed by this awful phrase. Cease conjuring up visions of a solemn conclave, of a prime minister or a Mr. Stevens, giving out his opinions like a voice out of the heavens, with the roll of drums and the blare of bugles. All that happens in that the head man sits back and grins at the newspaper boys, and they grin back at him; a few questions are asked, fewer are answered and most turned aside with a smile, and the boys file out, and what was just casual gossip to them becomes the world news of the day. I once attended one of Mr. Roosevelt's famous press conferences, and I like to mention it as frequently as possible. It gives one an air of authority on American politics and large international issues though most of the talk around Mr. Roosevelt's desk, to tell the truth, was pure Greek to me, being conducted in a series of slang phrases understood only by the President and his friends.

Anyway it wasn't a conference, it wasn't solemn, and you don't need to be impressed when you read about such things again. But it is too bad to see a fine old word like "conference" dragged through the streets modernized, streamlined and forced to join the Rotary Club.

QUAINT PRAISE

QUAINTEST of all the praise received by Mrs. Wills Moody for her great come-back on the tennis courts was uttered by the eminent Mr. Brisbane. While the rest of America shouts with joy at the victory of the great Helen, Mr. Brisbane gives the shout a classical touch by saying that she is infinitely more interesting than the original Helen of Troy, whose face, you recall, launched a thousand ships and fired the towers of Ilium. The modern Helen may be more interesting but, perhaps, in a different way.

However, Mr. Brisbane adds the quaint advice to Mrs. Wills that if she and Miss Helen Jacobs, too, would come back to the United States now and bear three fine children each, how much more interesting and better that would be than winning tennis matches at Wimbledon.

This shows you the advantage of a democratic society. In any other country, a lady who had won the world's tennis championship would be a national figure. Parliaments would make illustrious addresses to her. Pictures of her would be sold in the streets. Probably prayers would be said for her in the churches. But in the United States the chief pundit and oracle of the time tells her to come home and bear three children. It must be delightful indeed to become a great American and receive this invaluable advice for nothing.

AGITATOR

THE BEST thing I have seen on the subject of agitators, who are the present bogy of our Canadian statecraft, appears in an obscure letter to the editor of The Vancouver Sun. The writer alludes with vigor on the neck of my friend, Pat Maitland, who made a speech recently denouncing the agitators and so far as one could gather, definitely identifying the God of Christians with the existing economic system and the Conservative Party.

The writer-to-the-editor says: "Mr. Maitland apparently overlooks the fact that the Founder of the religion he professes adherence to was the greatest agitator of his day, and it was the government of that day that eventually murdered Him in the name of law and order." Quite true, and Mr. Maitland and all the other politicians of British Columbia are pretty good agitators themselves. They will do little else but agitate from now until mid-September.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, July 11, 1910 (From The Times Files)

For the first time in the history of Victoria a big four-master, fully laden, left the upper end of the Inner Harbor on Saturday night, when the British barque, Eginshire, Capt. Wright, carrying nearly 8,000,000 feet of lumber and drawing over twenty-four feet of water, was taken to an anchorage at Royal Roads. Consorted by the tug Lorne, with the tug Dominion at her bows, the Eginshire was moved from the Michigan and Puget Sound Lumber Company's wharf amid the cheering of her crew and spectators and hoisting of whistles, down the channel, which had been especially cut for her, and out of the harbor without accident of any kind.

W. N. Kennedy, champion sculler of British Columbia and of the Pacific Northwest. These were the titles earned by the James Bay Athletic Association oarsman on Saturday afternoon, when he defeated Gloss, of Portland, and Sinclair of Vancouver, over the mile and a half course on the Indian River, Vancouver, in the senior singles of the N.P.A.A.C. regatta, having the day previously won the junior event in 10:04.

Because the majority of the team had no sleep for over thirty hours before the game owing to an unpleasant crossing on the steamer Charmer, and because of the oppressive heat which took the stamina out of the fatigued boys, the Victoria lacrosse team, which the critics held curing the flesh in the third quarter on beat the best Vancouver Amateur twelve under equal conditions, they went down before the Vancouver Amateur 6 to 3 in the Provincial League match played at Brockton Point Saturday afternoon.

In all probability the battered steamer Yucatan will be taken to the Columbia River and repaired by the Willamette Steel and Iron Company, which is the lowest tender with a bid of $69,850. The tug William Joliffe will take the damaged steamer from here south.

RELIEF CAMP STRIKERS

To the Editor:—In my statement to The Times, Friday, July 5, I should have said that the citizens of Regina gave us the greatest and most friendly of receptions, and supported us "On Ottawa Trek" wholeheartedly during our stay in Regina, and are indignant that a riot should have been needlessly precipitated in their city. Also that, while opposed to the existing camp relief system, we realize that camps for road construction at decent wages, are necessary.

In regard to the letter under the heading, "Dictatorships," in The Times of July 3, and that due to recent events some fear that fascism may be precipitated upon us here in Canada, I would quote H. O. Wells.

Wells wrote: "It is not communism that threatens America, or any fascism of a European type. These things come in because of the moral and intellectual bankruptcy of the types and classes in charge of affairs in Russia, Germany and Italy, and their characters were determined by local conditions."

"It seems more probable that an intellectually cruder and more instinctive sort of revolution is likely to appear in America if this confused inexactness, this failure to state and direct in a way understandable by the popular mind, on the part of those who should lead in reconstruction, continues."

One may well be forgiven an occasional phase of doubt and dismay if he can see at times nothing but the immensity of what confronts or appears to confront in Canada, and what immediate reaction may come.

ADAM'S FAMILY

To the Editor:—I wish to ask you to allow me to put in some information for those who claim that they do not believe in any Christian church but at the same time are asking for statements from the Bible to support their opinions.

They do not ask for the real meaning of the words of the Bible or do not want to know it. Instead of that they want it dressed up with some fancy tales or modern guessing (Turn to Page 5, Col. 1) or modern scientific teaching to satisfy their own opinions.

When they ask for any statement from the Bible, first of all they always ask when the real beginning of the world took place, and who were the first people on the earth. And further, they want to know what part of Asia the land of Nod was in, or whom Cain married, and so on. And also they ask that there is not a word in the Bible that claims that Adam and Eve had any daughters. Now, let me ask those people to go to the Bible and look up the fifth chapter in the book of Genesis and read the whole chapter through. There will be no need any more of asking whether or not Adam and Eve had any daughters. Let them look up the fifth chapter in the book of Genesis and they will find that there.

Now, let me conclude by saying, don't let us forget that all the people of the earth are all one flesh and blood of Adam. They have nothing to do with any missing link, because there is no such thing or never was such thing as that missing link of Darwin or any other missing link.

MOTORCYCLES

To the Editor:—Don't you think the following article may cause even one of our citizens to laugh, whose hat has just been lifted by one of those "Coke" news' dragons, to whom the keys of the city have been handed by the police and permission given to roam our thoroughfares at eighty miles an hour under the caption of Motorcycles?

The original of the following sign at some time graced a barbed-wire fence along a rural roadside, and a photograph thereof is now hanging on the wall of the office of the secretary of the San Francisco County Supreme Court.

NOTES!

"trespassers will be persecuted to the full extent of two mungrel dogs which have been made available to strangers & I dubble bri shot gun which aint loded with sofa pillows. Dam if I aint gitten tired of this hell raisin on my place.

Evidently this rustic felt that the situation demanded sterner measures than the "full extent of the law."

WALTER CLAXTON.

THE CRY OF YOUTH

To the Editor:—We want work. We want wages. We want to live. We want our place on earth which was rightfully given to us by God at birth. This is the cry of youth. Like the blooming rosebush is encircled by weeds and faces destruction, so is youth faced with false teachings and misfortunes. One of the worst places of corruption is the "Relief Camp." In those places youth has no freedom of soul; his spirit has no outlet, so only the youth possessed of an iron will in his mind can survive the attacks of evil forces concentrated in these camps. "Go back to Camp" is the cry of R. B. Bennett. "We feed and clothe you there," but what about the spiritual welfare of man? Christ said that man cannot live by bread alone—he also needs the spiritual uplift. Nothing is said by Mr. Bennett about protecting the soul of man in the camp, or even his body. Then how can a man protect himself and keep his soul and body clean? Many souls suffer in silence in those camps; I have witnessed this destruction of youth for a long time and, as a student of psychology and through my knowledge of the inner and psychic life of man in camp, I have seen many young boys coming into camp, their character was good, but without pity they were placed in the bunkhouses among many different types of character. At first they isolate themselves, but soon they succumb to the attack of the negative forces from which they have no chance of escape. Mr. Bennett, feeling the vibration of those negative forces coming to Ottawa, now wants the people to stem the tide; he even asks the police and, finally, the army, but what about the many good souls that were compelled to mingle with those forces which were left free to devour their victims and the blooming youths to be spoiled for the rest of their lives?

I am not in sympathy with the Relief Camp strikers, nor with the officers who have charge of the camps, nor with Mr. Bennett's idea of treating a soul. One question interests me: Why did the authority of the camps allow communistic propaganda in the British Columbia camps since December, 1934, and so made every relief camp in this province a breeding place for the agitator, or would-be communist fanatic? The present strike was instigated and prepared in the British Columbia camps, right under the very nose of the authority who had full knowledge of it.

There appears to be plenty of money to waste in the upkeep of those relief camps, but no money for the men. Millions of dollars from the taxpayers' money are spent with no other returns than the corruption of blooming youth which brings instability to the future of this country. Only health, happiness and prosperity with true spiritual education will bring love and peace to all beings.

May Nurse Babies In Senate Gallery

Associated Press
Washington, July 10.—Representative Blanton (Democrat, Texas), wants mothers of babies in arms to know the United States House of Representatives dorkkeeper himself says they are welcome to nurse their progeny in the house gallery.

To get this idea across and, incidentally, to spike what he denounced as erroneous reports that a mother was escorted from the gallery on June 27 for such an act, the Texas Democrat sought house consideration of a resolution saying such reports were incorrect.

Although the resolution was laughed down good naturedly, Blanton accomplished his purpose of getting into the record a letter from dorkkeeper J. J. Sinnott giving an account of the incident and concluding: "Mothers have nursed babies in the gallery before this incident and they have never been interfered with. They are welcome at all times."

Says "Squaw" Not Official Term

Associated Press
Washington, July 10.—The word "squaw," the Indian Office says, is not used in government publications. Neither is the word "paleface."

The terms, it was said, "have been overdone and have come to mean something a little different than they did originally."

"Squaw" originally was a Narragansett word meaning "woman."

Dr. G. F. Davidson of Victoria Takes Miss Elizabeth Henderson as Bride

Vancouver, July 10.—A wedding of interest to many university friends, as well as friends in Victoria, was that which took place in St. Andrew's Wesleyan United Church last evening at 8 o'clock, when Elizabeth Ruth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Henderson, became the bride of Dr. George Forrester Davidson of Victoria, provincial superintendent of welfare, and younger son of Mr. O. W. Davidson of New Westminster.

The groom secured his Ph.D. at Harvard after graduating from the University of British Columbia, while his bride, who is also a graduate from this province, is affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta Sorority.

Dr. J. O. Brown performed the ceremony, at which Dr. Allan Davidson was best man and Miss Betty Allan the bride's only attendant.

During the signing of the register Mr. John A. Hall sang "Psalm of Love." Ushers were Mr. Harold Henderson and Mr. Arnold Henderson, brothers of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a charming picture in her white wedding gown cut on classic lines. Suede lace posed over cream satin was its medium. Bouffant sleeves fell to the elbow, where they were caught into long light cuffs which ended in tiny points. The fullness of the skirt was gathered in the back into a train, and from the draped blouse caught at the back with a pearl ornament a cascade descended in graceful lines outlined with piping.

Her cap of the same lace as her gown was edged with a torse of net and came to a point over the forehead, while the long silk veil, covering the cap and extending in charming fullness over the skirt train, was caught at the side with a spray of orange blossoms. The bride's flowers were a sheaf of Regal lilies and fern, tied with white satin.

Miss Betty Allan was wearing a floor length crepe dress in coral tones, featuring sunburst pleats in the centre front and back of the straight lined skirt. The bateau neckline was unusually fashioned, being formed of pleated bands, edged with corded piping the bands extending over the long close-fitting sleeves. Her hat of delphinium blue, with applique motifs on the crown and brim, had its color repeated in her sheaf of delphinium and pearl snapdragons.

Church decorations for the wedding were carried out in pink, blue and white summer flowers.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Colman's—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just clogs by the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sick, sunk and the world looks punk.

Lawson's are only milkshakes. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Colman's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet powerful in making bile flow freely. Ask for Colman's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. See.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

EIGHT-POUND BABY SHOULD GAIN TEN POUNDS IN SIX MONTHS

The rate of baby's weekly gain should never be made the object of a mother's fanatical consideration, as babies differ in their ability to put on pounds. But there are normal gains for each age and these are deeply significant of a baby's good nutrition. These trends should be studied by the mother who would know what her baby should gain if well fed.

Ordinarily the baby gains about two pounds each month for the first six months and one-half in each of the second. A gain of one pound or less the first six weeks is therefore apt to be indicative of underfeeding and all the behavior and nutritional problems which tend to accompany undernourishment.

COULD BE FATTER

Mrs. F. A. B. writes: "I love to read your interesting articles about babies and now I hope you can help me with your advice. My baby is six months old. He weighed eight pounds at birth and now weighs 12½ pounds. He sleeps well at night and is playful and strong but he could look fatter. He has had several stomach attacks but none for about five or six weeks. He has never had anything but breast milk. He won't take cod liver oil or orange juice. What shall I do? When should he stop nursing a bottle?"

If I understand you rightly he has never had a bottle. Usually bottle feedings are dropped between nine and twelve months, never retained after the twelfth month.

WOEFULLY UNDERFED

He may refuse the orange juice because it is mixed with oil. Give each alone. Or, if the baby still refuses, add the orange juice to the bottle formula. Give it after each meal, or change to a type of vitamin D which baby will accept. There are numerous good ones.

Your baby is woefully underfed. With the advantage of his excellent birth weight he could now have weighed at least eighteen pounds, and this is a conservative estimate.

STUDY THE DIET

You would be astounded at the liberality of the diet of the modern well-fed baby of this age. I suggest that you send me a self-addressed and stamped envelope and let me send you the leaflets, "Weaning the Breast-fed Baby" and "Feeding From Two to Nine Months." Address your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

I wish, since you are so pleasantly devoted to the department, that you had written sooner. Presumably, if your baby's gain in any criterion, the stomach attacks were rebellions against emptiness.

RECALLS MEMORABLE TRIP

MRS. J. H. KING

Enjoyed Hospitality of Willingdons At Delhi

Mrs. J. H. King Recalls Vivid Impressions of Oriental Magnificence, as Contrasted With Dire Poverty in India; Impressed With Japanese

A memorable five days' stay at the vice-regal palace at Delhi, during which they shared with Indian maharajahs and British peers the lavish hospitality of the Viceroy of India and Lady Willingdon, was the highlight of the world tour enjoyed recently by Senator and Mrs. J. H. King.

Dr. and Mrs. King returned on Monday from Ottawa and to a Times representative yesterday the senator's wife related informally, recording her vivid impressions of their four-and-a-half-months' tour through the Orient and the Far East.

They were three weeks in India, of which five "unforgettable days" according to Mrs. King, were spent as guests of the Viceroy and Lady Willingdon at the palace at Delhi.

"India is a country of most amazing contrasts. On the one hand is the fabulous wealth of the Indian princes; on the other, the direst poverty of millions, which meets the eye wherever one goes," she said.

MORE SPLENDID THAN ROYALTY

"The splendor surrounding the vice-regal household outrives that of the King and Queen in Great Britain," in the opinion of Mrs. King.

She recalled the magnificence of the vice-regal palace, the elaborate ceremonial, and all the pomp and circumstance necessitated in the lives of the representatives of the King-Emperor in a country whose native princes live in an atmosphere of wealth reminiscent of the Arabian nights.

In honor of Dr. and Mrs. King, Their Excellencies entertained at a dinner of eighty guests, when many Indian princes resplendent in jewels of breath-taking beauty were present.

RUBIES AS BUTTONS

"The young Maharaja of Gwalior was among those present, but as he was a minor he was not supposed to wear any jewels, so he wore only the row of huge rubies which buttoned his tunic from waist to neck," Mrs. King observed.

This young prince invited the Canadian visitors to be his guests at his palace, but owing to their itinerary being full, they were most reluctantly obliged to refuse.

The vice-regal palace entertains on a lavish scale and receives numbers of important guests. During the stay of Dr. and Mrs. King, other British guests included the young Duke of Norfolk, who is the premier Catholic peer of England, and the Duke of Cumberland.

The palace has 1,000 servants, and is unbelievably magnificent, says Mrs. King. She and the Senator were shown the Durbar rooms with its gorgeous jewel-studded thrones, which rest upon rugs of pure gold thread.

CHANGING OF THE GUARD

One of the most impressive sights

at the palace was the changing of the native guard, which they were privileged to witness during their stay. These native soldiers are superb types of an average height of six feet four inches, wonderful horsemen, and present an unforgettable spectacle in their picturesque uniforms.

The Taj Mahal at Agra they saw under the most perfect conditions, by the light of the full moon. From 9 o'clock at night until 3 in the morning, they revelled in the unrivalled beauty of this unique memorial to a great love.

PREFERS CAMELS

On elephants, Dr. and Mrs. King rode to the deserted city of Amber in Rajasthan, and in this connection Mrs. King confesses that while she didn't mind riding on elephants, she preferred the sensation "aboard" a camel, on which steeds they journeyed in the Libyan desert at another stage of their tour, and which she, contrary to the usual experience, thoroughly enjoyed.

The fakirs, or holy men, were an unfailing source of interest to the travelers. Mrs. King marvelled at the endurance with which some of them stare unceasingly and unblinkingly at the sun for days on end, until finally blindness sets in. Others crawl painfully for weeks at a time, while others lie on beds of sharp nails in the hope of attaining their own particular "Nirvana."

GRUESOME RITES

The religious customs of India greatly interested the Canadians. One custom, very gruesome to Occidental observers, was that at Jumna River they saw dead babies cast into the sacred waters, to be immediately seized by enormous turtles.

At Benares, one of the holy cities, the sacred water of the Ganges serves the people with water in many ways. They bathe in it, cast refuse into it, and drink it, Mrs. King recalled.

A JAIPIR WEDDING

While in Jaipur they saw one of the many wedding processions which are a common sight in India. This one was unusual owing to its elaborate character, the bridegroom being a very wealthy man. He journeyed to meet his bride on a marvellously caparisoned elephant, hung with elaborate trappings, preceded by curiously garbed outriders on horseback, and followed by a band—and those Indian bands sound awful to a westerner's ears—interpolated the senator's wife—and a troupe of native dancing girls.

Dr. and Mrs. King were much interested in the spectacle, and the crowd following it goodnaturedly parted their ranks to allow the visitors to see the principals.

IMPRESSED BY JAPANESE

The Japanese people impressed Mrs. King tremendously by their immaculate cleanliness, their alertness and their charming manners. In Kyoto she and Dr. King were guests of a charming Japanese couple of the western school of thought, the wife being a graduate of Bryn Mawr, the husband of Harvard.

In this house the visitors were entertained at an elaborate Japanese meal, featuring many of the epicurean dishes of old Nippon. Their host was the proud possessor of what is reputed to be the finest

Tobacco "King" Weds Secretary

Associated Press
London, July 10.—A business office romance resulted in the marriage Monday of George Washington Hill, "million dollar a year" American tobacco executive, and his secretary, Mary Barnes.

The fifty-year-old president of the American Tobacco Company and Miss Barnes, thirty-nine, were wed in the Caxton Hall register office, with nine relatives and friends in attendance.

After the brief ceremony, Hill gave his bride an affectionate kiss as they passed Buckingham Palace in a taxi cab en route to a downtown hotel. The guests followed in other taxis to a champagne party.

"I don't know our plans, but I can say I am darned happy," asserted the executive.

Mrs. Hill with difficulty controlled her emotion as they faced a barrage of cameras outside the registry office. For fees and the license the "million dollar a year" executive paid out about $12.25.

Anti-fat Drug Investigated

To See If Blindness of San Francisco Women Due to It

Associated Press
San Francisco, July 10.—Research workers of the Stanford University Medical School here to-day were endeavoring to learn whether dinitrophenol, newly-developed "anti-fat" drug, was responsible for causing the temporary blindness of twelve San Francisco Bay district women who have been stricken recently.

All of the women, whose names were not revealed, had taken the drug in an attempt to reduce, it was reported by Dr. Loren Chandler, dean of the school.

Dr. Chandler and Dr. Walter W. Boardman, who reported the cases to The Journal of the American Medical Association, said the blindness resulted from the formation of cataracts over the eyes, but it was not yet known whether the cataracts were caused by the drug or by malnutrition, unbalanced diet or other factors.

It was estimated 1,000,000 persons in the world, including about 100,000 United States women, are now using the new drug, but Dr. Chandler warned that school authorities "advised against its use for the present."

The use of dinitrophenol, first called to the attention of the world in 1931 by French scientists, has grown rapidly during the last four years. It acts as a stimulant to metabolism, it was explained, literally "burning up" excess fat.

To Greet Danes At Chemainus

Chemainus, July 10.—A meeting was called on Monday afternoon by Councilor Smiley in the recreation hall to complete arrangements for the entertainment for H.M.S. Danes, arriving at Chemainus to-morrow. The ship will be in port until July 15 but an invitation has been received from Duncan for the men to attend the Sweet Sea Festival on the Friday evening, so that only Thursday and Saturday were arranged for here.

On Thursday afternoon a reception has been arranged, a dance to follow in the evening. On Saturday tentative plans include a football game, a baseball game and a smoker or concert in the evening.

and oldest collection of priests robes in the world. So rare is the collection that it was loaned to the Chicago exhibition a few years ago, but owing to its being irreplaceable, the Japanese owners have decided not to risk loaning it again out of the country Mrs. King stated.

During their stay in Tokyo, Dr. and Mrs. King were guests of Hon. Herbert Marler and Mrs. Marler at the Canadian Legation. And of their hosts they cannot speak too highly, she said.

Thanks to the Canadian Minister's influence, they were everywhere welcomed with the most amazing hospitality, in which art the Japanese are pastmasters.

Prince Tokugawa, father of the Hon. I. Tokugawa, former Japanese Minister to Ottawa, entertained the visitors at an elaborate luncheon.

A Japanese marquis also entertained Dr. and Mrs. King, on his magnificent estate. As indicative of the extraordinary way in which ancient and modern ideas run parallel in the Japan of to-day was the "foreign" house, where they had tea, situated in vast gardens of Occidental design, on this peer's estate.

After tea, their host conducted them, across the gardens, through a hedge, and they were in old Japan, with acres and acres of typical Japanese landscape gardens, in the centre of which was a typical Japanese house of great beauty.

"Among the rooms in this house was one marvellous room panelled with exquisite Japanese embroidery, each suspended at the top by a plaque of real jade, of the size of one's palm," Mrs. King declared.

Egypt also proved fascinating to the travelers, while another of the highlights of the rest of their tour was Syracuse, where Dr. and Mrs. King visited the little temple in the catacombs, where St. Paul is said to have preached his first sermon, and in which the original primitive stone pulpit and rough stone seats still remain.

MRS. J. A. LYONS COMING WEST

Wife of Australian Premier to Speak Twice in Canada

Associated Press
Washington, July 9.—Canada will have a better chance than either Great Britain or the United States to sample the charm, wit and wisdom of Mrs. J. A. Lyons, wife of the Australian Prime Minister.

She said in an interview to-day she's looking forward to making two speeches in Canada, one at Ottawa, and one at Montreal—and Britain and this country saw her only socially.

One subject she may mention is her first-hand view of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, her hostess in Washington, whose speech-making, article writing, political-minded career parallels her own.

She warned Mrs. Roosevelt: "With your kind permission, I am going to write you up!"

Chatting about her trip to-day, Mrs. Lyons said her only regret was what she wasn't seeing.

"I was three months in London," she said, "and I never even saw the Tower of London—never saw the wax-works. Who in the wide world has seen London if they haven't seen those things?"

Garrison Riflemen Put Up Record Total To Take Honors

THE SPORTS MIRROR

LIKE JOE LOUIS of fistic fame, Jesse Owens has just come of age and is travelling with a slightly revised name. The full name of Shuffling Joe is Joseph Louis Barrow. He dropped the Barrow part after his first fight as an amateur. He took such a walling he didn't want his family to have to bear any future burden of shame. A needless procedure, as it turned out. But Joe meant well.

The revision of the name of Jesse Owens was more or less accidental. "Jesse" is the given name, but it was the gift of a stranger and not the donation of his parents. It is so long since he has been called anything but Jesse that even the family sponsors forget whether they started him off in life as James Cleveland or Glover Cleveland Owens. His father's name is Cleveland Owens. The youngster grew up and still has his home in Cleveland. When he first went to school and was asked his name by the teacher he gave the first part by initials only. He does not remember whether he said "J. C." or "G. C.", but it didn't matter because the teacher translated it as "Jesse," and that's the way it reads on the scroll of fame.

Old how some of these great athletes come up. Ray Ewry of the old days was an invalid, almost a cripple, as a youngster. He took to exercising under the doctor's orders, just for the benefit of his health. He was ten Olympic jumping titles. Glenn Cunningham had his legs badly burned in a schoolhouse fire when he was a youngster. For years he had to be careful; he was not allowed in rough games like football. He had to play by himself. So he took up running. Jack Laycock broke a leg as a rugger. That was the end of his career as a rugger player and it also looked like the end of any career he might have ahead of him on the track. But he found out in due time that he still could run. And Messrs. Bonthron and Cunningham found it out, too.

Bonhron had no track ambitions at the start. He had to be pushed into competition. A high school teacher in Cleveland asked a skinny negro lad by the name of Owens to come out for track because he thought it would be good for the youngster's health. The boy was one of seven children in a poor family. For a while the youngster showed no great speed but had great enthusiasm for the sport. But the following year the teacher put him to a time trial at 100 yards. After looking at his watch, the teacher-trainer said: "Shuck!" and took the watch to be fixed. But the watch was all right. And Jesse Owens had taken his first speedy steps on the road to fame.

King Extends Good Wishes to Canucks

London, July 10.—Good wishes from King George were tendered the team of Canadian schoolboy cricketers, from colleges and private schools, now touring England, at a luncheon given for the boys to-day by the Hudson's Bay Company.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General-designate of Canada, admitting he belonged "to a barbarous country where cricketers are hardly played—Scotland," said he hoped the tour would help bring Canada through cricket into closer partnership in inter-imperial sport.

Score 500 Out of 525 To Take B.C. Electric Trophy

Five-man Team Fires Brilliantly; Are Also Winners of Gelletly Trophy

Capt. D. Fyvie Individual Star

By Times Staff Representative

Heals Range, July 10.—Turning in a record score for a five-man team, the Garrison Rifle Association captured the B.C. Electric Railway Trophy here yesterday afternoon in the B.C.R.A. meet, with the remarkable point total of 500 out of a possible 525, for an average score of 100 points per man. The match was fired from the 200-yard, 500-yard and 600-yard ranges in conjunction with the British Consols No. 1 match.

The win marked the second triumph of the day for the Esquimalt shots, as they captured the Gelletly Trophy earlier in the day. Due to the fact that the Garrison duplicated their achievement last year, the B.C. Electric Railway Cup now becomes their permanent possession. The members and scores of the winning team were:

S.M. W. H. Ruffell..... 101
S.M. E. J. Reid..... 102
Q.M.S. A. W. Wood..... 90
Q.M.S. A. E. Evans..... 100
P. H. Thorburn..... 98

No. 4 (P.B.) Squadron R.C.A.P. Jericho Beach, captured second place in this match with 497 points total. This score, in the past, was usually high enough to capture first place in the meet. Three points behind in third position came the 11th (A.C.) Squadron, R.C.A.P. (N.P.), Vancouver, with 494 points. The Victoria Canadian Scottish squad won fourth place honors with 489. Vancouver Rifle Association and Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, Vancouver, with 484 and 474 points, respectively, brought up the rear.

CAPT. FVIE BRILLIANT

Capt. Dave Fyvie, veteran Canadian Scottish marksman, set a terrific pace during the day's shoot, when he found firing conditions very much to his liking. He not only tied for first place honors in the first round of the Westminster Corporation match at 200 yards with his 34, but also led the marksmen to capture the British Consols No. 1 match with a brilliant 103 out of a possible 105. The veteran shot posted two 34s and a possible 35 on the three, seven shot rounds fired at 500 yards, 600 yards and 200 yards, respectively.

His victory was the outstanding individual achievement of the day and marked him as a serious contender for the grand aggregate championship. Close on his heels in this match came S.M. E. J. Reid of the Garrison Rifle Association, and Sgt. J. Kier of the R.C.A.P. (N.P.), Vancouver, with 102 for second and third place. Mrs. H. Rayment, C.S.R., one of the women competitors, was well up in the running with a 99, to take twelfth place.

The first shoot-off of the meet occurred when L.A.C. W. G. Harvey, No. 4 (P.B.) Squadron R.C.A.P., Jericho Beach, and Private H. Thorburn of the Garrison Rifle Association, tied for first place in the tyro and green shoot match for the Woodward Trophy with 34s. Harvey finally won out after an exciting match by outscoring his opponent 22 points to 21 points in a five-shot match fired at 200 yards.

Cards for the shoot-off follow:

Harvey..... 4, 5, 3, 5, 5, 2—22
Thorburn..... 4, 3, 4, 5, 5, 2—21

At the conclusion of the day's activities, Capt. Fyvie led the field in the grand aggregate championship with 137 out of a possible 140. The local marksmen dropped only three points in the four rounds fired yesterday. Kier was only one point behind the local shot with 136 points, with four 34s on the four rounds. (Turn to Page 10, Col. 8)

Weather Interferes With Net Tourney

For the first time since the meet started last Saturday, weather indications point to a clear, sunny day, and officials in charge of the Esquimalt tennis championships at the Hillcrest Club courts were confident they would be able to bring their tournament up to date with eighteen scheduled matches. Rain washed out the billed matches for Sunday and Monday, while sudden courts made play impossible yesterday afternoon, with the exception of two matches.

Runner-up Enters Times Swim Race

Bette Barnhart, Vancouver, Will Again Seek Distance Laurels in Event Here August 3

First two to finish in last year's grind and first two to sign either names on the dotted lines of this year's official entry forms are Bobby Mathewson, Victoria, and Bette Barnhart, Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club, stars of The Times through-Victoria swim, 1934 edition.

The Victoria youngster and the Vancouver mermaid are the advance guard of what is expected to be a record number of entries for the newspaper's water classic this year. With them, other leading swimmers of Victoria, Vancouver and other points on the island are expected to line up on the Gorge float for the start, scheduled at 2:30 o'clock, August 3.

Whoever else may challenge Mathewson for The Times trophy he now holds, keen interest will be attached to the attempt of Bette Barnhart to wrest the laurels from his youthful brow. Last year, Bette, swimming a steady, smooth crawl, kept up a smart pace throughout the race to finish just four minutes behind the winner, who negotiated the distance in 1 hour, 15 minutes, 24 seconds.

WOMEN STRONG

Miss Barnhart led a contingent of women, who apart from first place, monopolized the finish of the race. Behind her came her club mate, Anne Mundigal, while Eleanor Feden, Thelma Aspinwall and "Bobbie" Adam all came in for prizes, while the men fell by the wayside, caught with cramps and exhaustion in the chilly water.

With the entry of Denny Walker, former winner, almost assured, the men should have a better chance of ousting the fair sex from the leading places, but the challenge of the women is still a possibility.

OLMPYC CAGE PLAY IS SET

Basketball Series at Berlin Will Be Played Out-of-doors in Summer

Lawrence, Kas., July 10.—Summer time basketball, out-of-doors, in contrast to the normal winter indoor setting of the game, will be provided in the 1936 Olympic Games at Berlin.

Advance copies of the regulations governing the first Olympic basketball competition were received here yesterday from Dr. Tri Dirm, general secretary of the Olympic committee in Berlin.

He advised Dr. F. C. Allen, athletic director of the University of Kansas and chairman of the Olympic committee of the national coaches and rules organizations, the contests would be played midway of the Olympic programme, on the afternoons of August 8 to 14, inclusive.

Competition will be governed by the rules adopted five years ago by the Federation Internationale de Basketball, of which M. Leon Bouffard of Switzerland is president, and R. William Jones of Great Britain, is general secretary.

Each nation may have a maximum squad of fourteen members, of whom only seven may be nominated for each game. They will be allowed forty-eight-hour intermissions between games.

Three B.C. Galas Receive Sanction

Vancouver, July 10.—Three aquatic galas were sanctioned by the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association at a meeting here yesterday evening.

The dates and venues are West Vancouver, July 27; Kelowna, August 7-8, and Bowen Island, August 10.

International permits were issued for the West Vancouver and Kelowna meets, where United States stars have been invited to compete.

New Plans For All-star Game

Suggested That Fans Have Opportunity to Vote on Players For Yearly Baseball Classic; Would Set Aside $10,000 For Players of Winning Team

By ALAN GOULD

New York, July 10.—Three suggestions calculated to put the all-star major league ball game on a scrappier, more widely-popular basis were put forward by observers yesterday in the third annual big show in the wide open spaces of the Cleveland Stadium.

It is proposed (1) to give fans throughout the country a chance to vote on the selection of the two teams, as originally done and subsequently discarded; (2) allow for an off-day before the game, so rival pitchers will be in that much better shape to perform, regardless of their regular-season assignment; (3) set aside a percentage of the gate receipts, say $10,000, to be split among the players on the victorious side.

The all-star game is strictly a charity affair now. All profits go to benevolent funds for old ball players. As a professional proposition, many baseball men think it would stimulate the game to offer something besides prestige to the victors.

SCHUMACHER ON SPOT

Take the case of Hal Schumacher, ace right-hander of the league-leading New York Giants. Hal was named for the all-star game by manager Bill Terry. He's the best pitcher in the National League, on the basis of current records as well as expert conviction. He was slated to start at Cleveland, but he did not and the game was lost before he took the mound for a four-inning trick. But here is the point; Schumacher was told beforehand by his manager that he was booked to pitch the opening game of a series with Pittsburgh to-day, regardless of how long he worked in the all-star show. So Hal asked to be relieved after doing his part.

Obviously Mr. Terry's team do not relish three beatings in a row, but they can't quaver. They selected their own five-man pitching staff for this year's game, without the help of the fans or any outsiders.

Three of them, Carl Hubbell, Dizzy Dean and Paul Derringer, were used Sunday, the day before the all-star game. Another, Van Mungo, was forced out by an injury and replaced by the luckless Bill Walker, who started and lost the inter-league battle.

The Americans took the game in stride, too, but it looks as if they still carry too much heavy artillery for the opposition to spike.

Junior Golfers Play To-morrow

City Championship Opens at Macaulay With Twenty Competitors

Junior golfers will get an opportunity to show their wares to-morrow morning, when the junior city golf championships get under way at the Macaulay Point course, commencing at 9 o'clock. Twenty young shotmakers have sent in their entries to date, and everything points to a successful tourney. Young Freddie Painter, who captured the Empress mid-winter event two years ago, heads the list of entries and is favored to reach the finals.

Play will be eighteen holes medal competition each day, with the low gross scorer at the end of thirty-six holes taking the title and the Maurice Carmichael Cup, symbolic of the honors. The tournament will continue on Friday.

Prizes will be awarded to the second best scorer and to the third place player. Another group of prizes has been set aside for the golfers making the best eighteen-hole score each day. Two special consolation prizes, donated by Charles F. Todd, are also up for competition.

The draw follows:

9.00—Fred Painter, Linday Roach and Tommy Ord.

9.05—Victor Painter, Jack Bagley and Charlie Thomas.

9.10—H. McMillan, Victor Lee and Gerald Coventry.

9.15—Bill Court, Alex Ord and Alex Simpson.

9.20—Bill McCall, Fred Jenkins and Jim Williams.

9.25—Dunc McLean, Bob Clements and Julien McGrath.

9.30—Bob Stewart and A. N. Osher.

MIRON STARS IN VICTORY

Doubles in Ninth to Give Clothiers 5 to 4 Baseball Win Over Bellingham

Vancouver, July 10.—Charlie Miron's smashing double in the last half of the ninth inning with the bases loaded sent three runners across the plate and gave the clothiers a 5 to 4 victory over Bellingham in an Inter-City Baseball League game here yesterday evening.

The game was featured by extra base hitting with two homers, two triples and Miron's doubles responsible for practically all the scoring.

Miron hit for the circuit in the second with the bases empty. Nebeuf of Bellingham also got a home run in the second with no one on base.

Short score:

R. H. E.
Bellingham..... 4 10 2
Clothiers..... 5 9 1
Batteries: Gray and Duggan; Boston and Staggs.

Cambridge Wins Varsity Cricket

London, July 10.—First decisive game in four years, Cambridge defeated Oxford by 185 runs in the annual three-day varsity cricket match concluded to-day at Lord's. It was the first Cambridge win since 1930. Oxford was victorious in 1931 and the following three fixtures were drawn.

Of the ninety-seven annual matches played since 1827, Cambridge has won forty-five and Oxford thirty-seven, the remaining fifteen being drawn.

Legard, Oxford, was the bowling star of to-day's play, taking seven wickets for 56 runs. He was closely followed by J. A. Hanegham, Cambridge, who took four for 31.

Scores, Cambridge University 909 and 229, Oxford University 221 and 108.

Teams Continue Neck and Neck Race In A Section Softball

Three Top Clubs Score Victories In Fast Battles

Brunsdon's, Silent Glows and Bert Waude's Turn Back Opponents

Spencers Score Thirteenth Win

Keen battle for honors in the A section of the Victoria and District Softball League continued yesterday evening with the three top teams coming through to victories. Occupying first place, by virtue of their having played one more game, Brunsdon's, last years champions, 14 to 11, at Athletic Park.

Keeping pace with Brunsdon's, Silent Glows turned back the Civic Staff at Victoria West Park 7 to 4. The Brunsmen are two points back of Brunsdon's, but have a game in hand. Bert Waude's, occupants of third position, traveled to Work Point and accounted for the Army nine, 11 to 3. Waude has sixteen points, with two games in hand, and one under protest. Three victories in these engagements would put the hair-dressers back up with the leaders.

Scoring five runs in the first inning, Brunsdon's never were in danger in their engagement with the laundrymen. The Silent Glows played bang up ball to whip the Civic Staff in one of the best games of the season.

The engagement between Waude's and the Army saw Empire Ernie Stockal the game in the eighth inning, with the former out in front, 18 to 3. At this stage the Army showed no desire to play ball in the opinion of Empire Stock, and he halted play. As a result the score reverted back to the seventh.

Taking the lead with three runs in the second inning, the Poodle Dog Cafe handed the Bapcos a 9 to 6 defeat in the B section. Francis Carr pitched good ball for the winners, and received first class support. Playing in the same division the Navy came through with an odd run victory over Kreages, 6 to 5.

In the C section Spencers chalked up their thirteenth successive victory at the expense of Hudson's Bay, 8 to 0.

WOMEN'S GAMES

Playing in a women's fixture at Central Park, C.Y.F.C. came through with a 30 to 15 verdict over Kreages Reds, while Kreages Cardinals gained two points by default when the Hudson's Bay failed to put in an appearance.

Featured by a triple play in the seventh frame by the winners, the Kinsmen defeated the Gyros, 14 to 9, at Beacon Hill Park in the first game of the Inter-School League play-offs. The second fixture will be played next Tuesday on the same grounds.

Schmidt's Mechanists and Togo Cleaners, junior softball nines, played twelve innings to a 5 to 5 score, at Central Park.

Centennial Juniors won their fifth straight game of the season when they defeated the Y.M.C.A., 19 to 7, in a Sunday School League fixture.

Harknet, Barr and Sage all hit home runs for the winners.

To-morrow evening Centennials will meet Eskine at the Scott Block field at 8:30 o'clock.

Saanich Nine In Softball Victory

The Young Saanich Liberals softball team took the highly touted Langford team into camp on Sunday afternoon, playing on the latter's home grounds, 17-19.

After pitching good ball for five innings for the visitors, a number of costly errors by his teammates were responsible for Atkinson being sent to the showers and Jan Campbell was sent in to pitch.

Behind the masterful hurling of Campbell, who struck out one Langford batter on three pitched balls, the Young Liberals team started to play ball again and after garnering three runs in their half of the ninth inning, proceeded to put Langford down in one-two-three order to take the game.

"Alabama" Must Improve Batting

Albany, N.Y., July 10.—After a month with the Albany Senators of the International League, Edwin C. "Alabama" Pitts has discovered the greatest obstacle to making the grade in professional baseball is his batting eye.

The former Sing Sing athlete, whose eligibility caused a national sports controversy, has played in fourteen games since joining the Senators, and his batting average is .185. His fielding is above reproach, however.

OFF-DAY FOR BISLEY SHOTS

Major Competitions at Great Empire Rifle Meet Start This Week-end

Bisley Camp, Eng., July 10.—To-day was an off-day for the Canadians as the seventy-second annual empire meeting of the National Rifle Association continued.

The Canadians will get into the fray when major competitions open on the week-end.

The Small Arms School won the Chesham Memorial for teams of four, a rapid firing competition at 250 yards, getting the trophy and $50.

The Canada Challenge Shield for the team of four, making highest aggregate in Monday's Queen Mary's rifle shoot, under service conditions, was awarded the team from H.M.S. Drake.

Sergeant-Major T. Moore, of the Small Arms School, putting on some sensational shooting yesterday captured the King's Medal for the best shot in the army at home, in the regular army division.

Sergeant-Major Moore posted 170 out of a possible 200 to chalk up his second successive win in the event.

Yesterday he won both principal events on the opening day programme—the Queen Mary's Prize and the Southern Railway.

Barnett Scores 151 In Brilliant Stand

Victoria Batsman Turns in Finest Individual Performance to Date as Victoria Draws With Auroras in Vancouver Cricket Tournament

Vancouver, July 10.—The temporary leadership in Vancouver cricket week will be decided to-day, when two Vancouver eleven, Burrards and Oiba, meet for the first time since the week of matches opened Monday.

Yesterday Burrards founced the Okanagan representatives, chalking up 280 runs for five wickets declared against the interior's 79 runs, while Oiba defeated Vancouver Wednesday, 99 runs to 79.

It was a hard break again for Victoria's strong eleven, which was held to a draw for the second day in succession.

Led by the flashing bat of Percy Barnett, who executed almost every variety of shot in the bag of the "complete batsman," to score 151, the Islanders piled up 281 runs for five wickets, then declared, but were unable to dismiss the Auroras-batmen before stumps were drawn. The Vancouver eleven scored 193 runs for six wickets.

GREAT DISPLAY

In an innings, lasting two and a half hours, the former county player sent the leather out of the grounds four times, hit one five and seven fours. Although Barnett was a little more venturesome than Ned Fawcett, who hit 150 runs for Burrards, the Victorian more than justified himself in the startling brilliance of his shots, and when he was finally caught out had 151 runs to his credit, the best individual performance of the week.

Wants Joe Louis To Cancel Exhibition

Chicago, July 10.—Joe Foley, promoter of the Joe Louis-King Levinsky heavyweight fight scheduled for the night of August 7 at Comiskey Park here, is endeavoring to have Louis cancel an exhibition scheduled for Toronto, July 22.

Foley said he wished the bout withdrawn to avoid the chance of Louis being injured, and also so he can settle down to a training camp in Chicago. Foley yesterday posted a $20,000 bond with the Illinois Athletic Commission binding the match.

Edgemoor, Eng., July 10.—Canada's quartette of youthful tennis stars were eliminated from all competition as the mid-counties championships continued to-day, running up against stern competition from England and the continent.

Seek Water Polo Match With Danae

Seeking their first competition since they won the provincial championship from Vancouver reps on May 24, Victoria's all-star water polo team to-day went after the visiting British ship Danae during Navy Week.

Arrangements were being made through the Navy Week committee, and it was believed the visiting sailors would be pleased to play if they could find a night free for the game.

In anticipation of the match at the Crystal Garden, members of the city team are expected to start practicing in the near future at the local pool.

We Guess They Shouted "Eye"

San Antonio, Tex., July 10.—Fishermen Brothell and Keyes, standing about fifty feet apart at Medina Lake, felt tugs on their lines about the same time, and when one pulled the other's line tightened.

Finally the lines slackened and they reeled in. On each hook was a fish eye.

How it happened or what became of the rest of the fish they said they did not know.

GIBSON WINS TWELFTH TILT

Veteran Hurler Continues Fine Work For San Francisco Seals

Making his debut in a Coast baseball league uniform, Vic Frasier, recent addition to Los Angeles' pitching staff from Cincinnati, was knocked from the box by those in-again-out-again San Francisco Missions as they defeated the Angels, 6 to 3.

Oscar Eckhardt did the heavy stick work yesterday, getting three hits to continue leading the league in batting honors, and the Missions regained second place just one game behind San Francisco.

Portland turned on the heat in the last two innings of the series opener against Sacramento, to defeat the Solons, 4 to 2. Art Herring held the Ducks to two runs until the closing stages of the game, when six Beaver hits were converted into four runs.

Don Johnson connected for the circuit for the Seals.

Seattle broke its three-day tie with Oakland and Hollywood by drubbing the shipping Auroras, 5 to 1, as the Tribe put on a five-run rally in the last three frames after being blanked for six innings by Bill Ludolph.

Seeded Stars Win In Seattle Tennis

No Upsets Registered As Washington State Championships Reach Rounds of Sixteen; Russ Hawkes, Vancouver, Captures Boys' Sectional Singles

Seattle, July 10.—Like all other tennis tournaments, seeded stars still were almost sure bets in the round of sixteen in the Washington State tournament here to-day but the favorites were figured to have to put on a little more pressure to advance to the quarter-finals.

All of the eight seeded competitors, Berkeley Bell, New York; Henry Prusoff, Seattle; Mel Dranga, Seattle; Gene Smith, Berkeley; Howard Blithen, San Francisco; John R. Law, Los Angeles; Wayne Sabin, Portland and Richard Bennett, Oakland, easily blasted their way to victories yesterday, several in two matches, but beginning to-morrow they will have to begin firing at each other.

BELL MEETS KELLY

Bell, fifth ranking amateur in the country, was expected to have to show some of his stuff in meeting Darrell Kelly, a cantankerous youngster from Portland, to-day.

Prusoff had no clinic in Bob Pommer, San Francisco, and Gene Smith had a tough character in Bob Colwell, Seattle. Howard Blithen also looked for trouble from Colin Clegg, a Seattle youngster who scored the only upset of the meet when he eliminated Henry Rosenberg, University of Washington star, in the first round.

Cusick Raegener, San Francisco, Mrs. Golda Myer Gross, Berkeley, Margaret Laird, Glendale and Katherine Rose, Los Angeles, seeded racquetballers in the women's division, still were riding high, wide and handsome, the first three having reached the quarter-finals.

Yesterday Prusoff bounced victorious through two matches, defeating Mariano Orpille, Seattle, 6-4, 6-2, and Paul Blugard, Seattle, 6-4, 6-2.

Smith, new Oregon State champion, had the toughest battle of the day, barely noosing out Douglas Imhoff, Long Beach, 6-4, 14-12, after eliminating Joe Livengood, Seattle, 6-1, 6-3.

Downing Don Lawrie, Berkeley, 6-0, 6-2, and getting a default win in his doubles bout, Bell hardly gained even exercise.

Miss Raegener, the favorite, had to really go to work to shake Ednah Lawrence, Yakima, 6-4, 9-7. Mrs. Gross defeated Evelyn Lamotte, Seattle, 6-0, 6-1, and Mrs. Laird eliminated Virginia Ryan, Seattle, 6-1, 6-1.

Russ Hawkes, Vancouver, B.C., won the first championship of the meet when he defeated Neil Ballard, Seattle, 6-2, 6-0, in the finals of the boys' sectional competition.

Has Fallen Twice While Performing Head Slide

"It doesn't pay to have any anxious moments in my act," laughingly says Felix Morales, of the Polack Brothers Circus, whose specialty is sliding sixty feet down a wire while doing a headstand. Mr. Morales is one of the oldest circus performers with the company and he has been thrilling spectators at the Armories this week, not only with his head slide but also with his work on the tightrope and the bounding table.

Born under the big tent, in Mexico, Mr. Morales has known nothing outside the circus life as a means of livelihood and he is now training his five-year-old daughter to carry on the family name which the sawdust ring has known for three generations.

Mr. Morales, now thirty-five, first started performing when he was six years old, doing trapeze work with his father and mother. At eight he went into an act of his own and has been improving on it ever since. He has been married seven years, and besides his five-year-old daughter he has a month-old son.

Twice in his life Mr. Morales has fallen while doing his perilous act. And curiously enough both falls were within three days of each other.

The first he had on July 4 last year, while the show was playing in Ohio. Mrs. Morales was also in the act and the tightwire slipped, both of them falling to the ground. Mr. Morales fell on top of his wife, and while she was more seriously injured he escaped with only a shaking up.

Three nights later, while performing his head slide in a circus tent, the tackle slipped and he fell to the ground on his head. The ground fortunately was soft.

"The act had to go on again that night," Mr. Morales said, "and I went back again and did the slide. The next morning I could hardly move."

Mr. Morales' grandfather, his father and mother were all circus artists, his mother at one time being acclaimed as the only woman who ever caught a man barheaded, without mechanical assistance, in a trapeze act. His mother is now in charge of the wardrobe for Downey Brothers Circus, in which two of his sisters take part. A third sister, Mrs. Concha Papes, takes part in a high-balancing act in Polack Brothers show.

Mr. Morales has played with every big circus except one in the United States, and has also appeared on the Pantages and R.K.O. vaudeville circuits. In doing his wire slide in a theatre he slides from the balcony to the stage, over the audience.

"What do you think of the Armories for the staging of a circus?" Mr. Morales was asked.

"It's alright, but the floor is cement and that's bad for my act," he laughingly commented.

Mr. Morales' father was an outstanding trapeze and parallel bar artist and about 1910 was considered one of the best in the United States. His grandfather owned a large traveling circus in the early days.

Among Mr. Morales' acts is his somersault on the tightwire. Fortunately he has never missed when performing this one.

He has been doing the tightwire slide for twenty-two years.

Mrs. Morales is featured in a loop-the-loop act and also appears with her husband. It is the thrill attached to circus work that keeps one interested, according to Mrs. Morales. She has very confidence in the safety of her husband, although she noted that two men had broken their necks in the last eight years performing the same act.

Santa Monica, Calif., July 10.—To the Editor of The Times. Well, sir, funny thing showed up in the papers yesterday. Something we hadn't heard of in so long that it seemed like reviving an act from King Tut's tomb. It was "the budget." Remember old budget? Well, they dug him up and they are even talking about balancing him. Course they won't be able to do that (you take a rope walker that's laid off for years and they never come back) but it's good just to hear the old boy's name mentioned again. Young folks won't know who he is but he was "a useful fellow" in his day. Budget is the name, spelled b-u-d-g-e-t pronounced budget. Yours, Will Rogers.

CELONA APPEALS CONCLUDE HERE

Justices of the Court of Appeal to-day reserved their judgment at the conclusion of the hearing of the second trial appeal of Joe Celona, sentenced to a total of twenty-one years by Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald in Vancouver after conviction on white slavery charges.

The two Celona appeals have been before the court here for two weeks, with Stuart Henderson and A. E. Branca in charge of the case for Celona, and Dugald Donaghy, K.C., and E. A. Dickie presenting the prosecution arguments.

BOY IN HOLE IS DUG OUT

Five-year-old George Peterson Held Prisoner For Two Hours Before Release

After being stuck in one of the city waterworks holes on Fort Street, near Foul Bay Road, for nearly two hours, five-year-old George Peterson, 2139 Florence Street, was released by waterworks men this afternoon who were forced to dig him out.

While playing on the roadside the last caught his foot in one of the concrete wall holes which the city has for connections for boulevard watering. The boy's leg was caught near the thigh and he was so tightly wedged it was impossible to move him without injury.

The waterworks department workers were finally summoned and after digging a hole two feet square and eighteen inches deep they lifted the cement cylinder out and broke it. The only injury suffered by the boy was a scratched leg.

Paralysis In Fowls Incurable

Fowl paralysis, deadly disease of the poultry flocks, which annually strikes down thousands of pullets throughout British Columbia, is incurable. It can only be controlled.

This was the finding of Dr. E. M. Gildow in collaboration with a number of other scientists at the University of Idaho, and brought out in his paper on "The Transmission of Fowl Paralysis" which he delivered at the final session of the Pacific Northwest Veterinarian Convention in the Empress Hotel this morning.

Fowl paralysis was highly infectious in the case of chicks, but had no effect on hens, the doctor declared. There were, however, certain strains or families of chickens which showed a hereditary tendency to resist the disease. He advised farmers living in congested areas where there was paralysis to substitute their diseased birds with stock from these strains. Other affected flocks in isolated areas should be destroyed and replaced with new chicks from clean sources.

Other papers delivered to-day were: "Clinical Significance of Urinology in Small Animal Practice," by Dr. G. D. Pinder of Vancouver; "Feeding Garbage to Swine," by Dr. Robert Garay of the U.S. Department of Agriculture at Corvallis, Oregon, and "A Method of Measuring Allergy and Anaphylaxis in T.B. Cattle," by Dr. C. G. Hofflin of Victoria.

The convention broke up at noon to-day after deciding on Tacoma for next year's gathering, which will probably take place on the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday following Independence Day, and passing a resolution expressing thanks to the B.C. association for the programme and entertainment they had enjoyed while in Victoria.

PIGS LIKE GARBAGE
"It is no good supplementing garbage with grain or other feeds, because the hogs won't eat them—they prefer garbage," said Dr. Jay, in presenting his paper on feeding garbage to swine. The U.S. agriculturist went into the whole business of raising hogs in this way. He pointed out that many men who had gone in for the business had made a tremendous success out of it, while others had failed. He said that the best site for a garbage feeding plant was far away from the public eye as possible.

Cleanliness was necessary on this type of farm, and yet it was a peculiar thing that filthy and insanitary conditions definitely did not bring about disease, the lecturer said. In building one of these plants the floors should be of concrete, with an apron sticking down into the earth to prevent rats from burrowing under. Garbage plants infested with rats were breeding places for the bubonic plague, an outbreak of which had occurred recently in California, Dr. Jay said.

"There are no diseases peculiar to hogs fed on garbage," the lecturer declared. "At one time it was thought that photograph needles which were common in garbage caused a disorder among the pigs that had eaten them, but photographs have gone out now and we still get the same illness among the swine."

HAMMER CASE APPEAL OPENS

C. H. Tait to-day opened before the Court of Appeal here his fight against the sentence of two months imposed by Magistrate Jay on Douglas Hodgson for hitting William J. Stevenson on the head with a hammer.

Mr. Tait explained that Mr. Stevenson was landlord of the James Bay house in which Florence Hodgson, wife of the prisoner, had a room. While on a visit to his wife he met Mr. Stevenson at the front door, and there were words, provocative remarks and a scuffle which was climaxed by Mr. Stevenson being struck on the head with a hammer.

"That is worse than being hit by a lacrosse stick," said Mr. Justice McQuarrie.

"Stevenson was hit by a hammer and naturally he objected to it," said Acting Chief Justice Martin.

The argument is being continued this afternoon with J. B. Clearhouse representing the prosecution.

Weatherman Good To Firefighters

Rain and Cool Weather Cuts Down Toll in Forests; Only Seventeen Fires Last Week

The weatherman may have dealt a mean hand to campers and summer vacationists for the last two weeks, but British Columbia forest firefighters have been sitting in with a royal flush.

Rainy and colder weather all over the province has cut down the fire toll so much that the outlook at the present time is better than it was at this date last year, which was not a bad fire season. Only seventeen fires were reported last week against fifty-three in the corresponding week of last year, and the total of fires to date is 397 against 434.

Three fires in the Port George district, two in Nelson and twelve in the Coast region were the totals for the week.

JUSTICES SHED ALL CEREMONY

Take "Pot Luck" at Bar Dinner; Farris Urges More Lawyers in Politics

Justices of the appeal and supreme courts came down from their benches yesterday evening to mingle with the rank and file of the legal profession at the dinner at the Empress Hotel ending the second annual convention of the Law Society of British Columbia.

J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., as treasurer of the society, was given the task of informing the justices that the members had expressed the desire to have the justices scatter themselves among the other guests at the dinner instead of being all grouped at the head table as customary in the past.

"We, you, for some, and take pot luck with the rest of us," said Mr. Farris.

The justices fell in with the spirit of the suggestion, attending the dinner and making good fellows of themselves.

The evening was spent in speeches devoted chiefly to story-telling and reminiscences. Before the members of the convention disbanded to return to their homes, Mr. Farris voiced the thanks of the society to the members of the Victoria Bar Association for the manner in which they had been entertained, singling out the names of A. D. Crease and H. J. Davis for special honor.

"Those of us who came from Vancouver, however, thought they hadn't had good so far to have brought some of our Vancouver weather over with us," Mr. Farris said.

Speaking of the responsibilities of the legal profession, Mr. Farris declared these were times when every person held a special responsibility to the state.

"Twenty-one years ago we congratulated ourselves on the world being safe for democracy," he went on. "Now we wonder whether the world is safe for democracy." He went on, "Now we wonder whether the world is safe for democracy and sometimes when democracy is safe for the world."

Mr. Farris went on to say that a shadow could be seen around the corner, but it could not be said for certain that it was the shadow of prosperity, there were likely problems more important than those of mere prosperity.

MENTAL DISSATISFACTION
"There is an intellectual curiosity and mental dissatisfaction abroad," Mr. Farris continued, "People seem to think they want something new. The present generation is not prepared to accept anything as true just because their fathers believe it. This attitude offers promises for the future because the more people are stirred, the sooner will we attain the end of having an intelligent and thoughtful democracy."

"The desire for change is fundamental to-day. But change is not necessarily progress. Change is progress when it flows naturally and logically in sequence of events. But when it is born of panic, that does not mean progress."

Speaking of the legal profession, Mr. Farris said he preferred to regard it as a group of men set apart by the public for special purposes.

"The great law which governs people is not the statute law, which is only the patching up, but the common law as developed and built up by the lawyers—the practicing barristers and solicitors and the judges who sit on the bench," Mr. Farris continued.

"The monopoly that is given us is not for our benefit, but for the public. We are public trustees."

"There are comments at times about too many lawyers being in politics. But I think there are no enough lawyers taking part in public affairs. I know of no group of men so uniformly qualified to give intelligent direction to public affairs as the members of the legal profession."

"Justice is right manifesting itself in organized society. When justice fails, organized society ceases to be organized. It becomes tyranny," Mr. Farris said he believed in justice because he believed it was the public should feel its representatives had some part in the administration of justice.

"I think we can congratulate ourselves on the administration of justice," Mr. Farris continued. "No matter how much we may criticize the manner of appointment of our judges, we feel they are fulfilling conscientiously their duties and doing right as they see it."

Mr. Farris pointed out that by tradition, the best crown counsel in criminal cases were not those who were guided by the desire to convict above all else, but those who presented all the important facts and were restrained in their addresses to the jury.

Returns From Northern Trip

Assistant Commissioner T. W. S. Parsons Back After 3,000-mile Journey

After a 3,000-mile journey through British Columbia's northland during which he supervised installation of the new short-wave radio station at McDame Creek, Thomas W. S. Parsons, assistant commissioner of B.C. Police, returned to the city yesterday. Commissioner Parsons inspected a number of coast detachments of the provincial police and brought back a number of valuable specimens for the museum and mines department.

Coincident with the installation of the new radio branch, Mr. Parsons noted a pronounced feeling of security which the introduction of radio had brought to people of the northern interior. He had heard many praiseworthy comments of government action in bringing these districts in communication with civilization.

An example of the value of radio communication to the northland was given by Mr. Parsons with the story of a member of the geological survey party who broke his leg at Dease Lake and was given attention by a doctor within twenty-four hours of the accident. This was made possible through two short-wave amateurs at the lake and Prince George who relayed the call to Telegraph Creek authorities.

TELLS OF ACCIDENT
Mr. Parsons recounted details of the mishap which he had with a party on a freight barge while en route to the Lower Liard Post of the Hudson's Bay Company. The barge, in charge of Captain Marston, with three white men and two Indians aboard, was holed in the river and it was necessary to unload—three tons of freight to repair the damage. The accident caused a six-hour delay.

Among the interesting specimens which Mr. Parsons brought back was a large piece of jade, taken from the lower Liard, which is to be turned over to the mines department. He also found some peculiar button-like sandstone concretions in mud deposits and some arrowheads from the Tahltan Indians for the museum. A rare hide scraper was found in the Yukon territory while on the old jail site at Dease Lake, which was operated in the late '70's and early '80's, he found two rocks and moulds for gold buttons.

Mr. Parsons was also able to secure considerable data for the surveyor general's department. He was away from Victoria forty-three days and covered more than 3,000 miles. Travel was mostly by water, except for a 100-mile overland trip from Telegraph Creek. He took nearly 600 photographs of animal life and general surroundings in the northland.

Mr. Parsons expressed satisfaction over the completion of the new radio link, which is in charge of Constable J. Meek, formerly of the Telegraph Creek detachment. It is expected to prove of invaluable assistance to the isolated districts and will be of particular advantage in cases of emergency.

CARD CHEATERS GRANTED BAIL

Emerald Hepburn and Ralph Lohn, sentenced in Vancouver to one-year terms for cheating at cards, were this afternoon granted bail in the sum of $1,000 by Acting Chief Justice Martin. The application was made by Stuart Henderson as their counsel, with W. B. Colvin of the Attorney-General's Department for the government.

Hearing of their appeal has been set over until the autumn sitting of the court.

Two appeals in person were dismissed by the justices. Len Coughlan, twenty-seven, sentenced by Judge J. N. Ellis in New Westminster to two years for theft from the person, appeared unsuccessfully against conviction and sentence. Malcolm Charlie, twenty-four, Indian, sentenced at Ashcroft to three years by Judge F. Calder for breaking and entering, asked leave to appeal against sentence, but his application was refused.

Former Victorian Died in Toronto

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. M. L. Walker, Vancouver; Mrs. R. C. Berry, Ottawa, and Mrs. W. A. Argers, Toronto. Mrs. Homer Gustafson, of Vancouver, is a granddaughter.

Mayor David Leeming, accompanied by the city engineer, G. M. Irwin, to-day inspected the resurfacing project being undertaken on the Dallas Road between Lewis Street and Beacon Hill Park. The street is being given a new dressing and will be materially improved by the work.

Max Baer Having His Difficulties

Former Heavyweight Champion and Bride of Eleven Days Have "Little Argument"; Fighter Denies They Will Separate; Baer to Get Hands Fixed Up

Canadian Press
Newark, July 10.—Max Baer, former world heavyweight champion, denied to-day he had separated from his wife, the former Mary Ellen Sullivan, Washington, D.C., as he boarded a plane at Newark airport for Baltimore. "There's nothing to it," Baer said. "I'm coming back to-night to join my wife at Long Branch."

showed evidence of worry the next when he spoke of his personal affairs. He admitted he and Mrs. Baer had had a "little argument," but he said they would have a "loving reunion" when he returned from Baltimore. He denied having said that he and his wife were separating. Referring to his being at a restaurant with Mary Kirk Brown yesterday evening, Baer said: "I was there with Mr. and Mrs. R. J. O'Brien, Mary and a woman friend happened to come in, and it was only natural to ask them over for a drink."

New York, July 10 (Associated Press).—Max Baer, leaping 100 paces ahead of the gossips, says that he and his bride of eleven days are parting. The bride was somewhere ahead or behind with a paradoxical comment: "We are very happy."

Canadian Senior Golfers in Win

Canadian Press
Fredericton, July 10.—Canada took individual honors in the senior golfers' triangular international tournament with Britain and the United States ending to-day, when K. M. Gray, Toronto, won the Founders' Cup with a score of 77. In the team championship which concluded yesterday Canada had trailed far in the rear, with five points to 17 1/2 for the United States and 31 1/2 for the Britons. A. B. Aitken, Great Britain, was runner-up in the individual events with 79, and M. L. Farney, New York, third with 80.

are: The former heavyweight boxing champion, accompanied by a girl who was formerly believed engaged to him, met a group of friends in a midtown restaurant yesterday evening, and said of himself and bride:

"I'm Jewish and she's Catholic, so it's no go. The marriage is on the rocks."

Mrs. Baer, who married him in Washington, D.C., on June 29, was informed yesterday evening of the statement at the Baer cottage in Long Beach, N.J. She laughed and said: "We are very happy. I talked to Max at 5 o'clock to-day and if there was anything wrong then, he failed to mention it."

As to her husband being in the company of his former fiancée, Mary Kirk Brown, Mrs. Baer said: "It's all right with me. I just didn't want to go to the city."

Mrs. Baer's father, James P. Sullivan Sr., said at lunch that he had heard nothing about a rift.

Friends, quoted Baer as saying he left his bride last Sunday after her insistence that they be married again by a Catholic priest. They were married by Judge F. Dickinson Letts.

"She said as long as I was not a Catholic and we had not been married in a religious ceremony, she was really not my wife in the eyes of the church. That was why I left her and came to New York."

It was because he was Jewish, he said, that he refused to be party to a second marriage. Though apparently cancelled by his later statements, Baer's first assertion when asked about the report that he and his wife were separating, was: "My God, I hope not."

Baltimore, July 10.—Max Baer will be placed under the care of Dr. William I. Hienrich, Jr., well-known specialist of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, when he arrives here to have his injured fists examined.

Whether he will remain for treatment depends upon the findings of an X-ray examination, it was said.

RANGERS WIN CUP SOCCER

Vancouver, July 10.—Vancouver Rangers defeated Columbia Hotel 4 to 2, here yesterday evening to march into the provincial semi-final in the Connaught Cup soccer series.

The Rangers meet Nanaimo City eleven here Saturday for the right to enter the final against Westminster Royals, the winners to represent British Columbia in the Dominion soccer playdowns.

Rangers opened the scoring twenty minutes after the game started. Spencer drove the sphere home on a cross from Gemmell. Ten minutes later, McNeill drove a corner shot that Watson passed on to Harvey for the latter to net Rangers' second corner.

In another ten minutes, McCannachie, of Columbia Hotel, passed down the field and Larsen kicked the ball for the hotelmen's only goal of the first half, and the breather found Rangers leading 2 to 1.

Twenty-five minutes after resumption, Watchorn put Rangers two up again on a pass from Spencer, but six minutes later McCannachie scored for Columbia on a penalty shot.

Harvey made sure of the verdict for Rangers when he scored from a scramble in the final minute of play.

RIDLEY TEAM WINS MATCH

Touring College Cricketers Defeat Regina Select 130 to 79

Regina, July 10.—By a margin of fifty-one runs, the touring Ridley College cricketers defeated the Regina Select under a broiling sun yesterday. It was hot, but otherwise a perfect day for cricket.

Batting first, the young tourists ran up 130 runs and then dismissed the Regina side for seventy-nine. They went in to bat again and amassed 122 before stumps were put, but the second innings did not count.

Wilson was high bat for the easterners, in the first innings, running up twenty-seven before being bowled by Woodhams. Other leading scores were Cameron eighteen, Mitchell seventeen, Purcell sixteen and Cassels fourteen.

In the second innings, Purcell drew a hand from the crowd for his sparkling forty-eight. This, together with Wilson's thirty-four, saved the side from a disastrous innings, for six wickets were down for twenty-eight when they formed the run-producing partnership.

A feature of the day was when W. Scandrett was bowled for a duck in both innings.

Two veterans shone at bat for Regina. Don Leighton had twenty and Foster eighteen.

Bowling honors of the day went to a veteran Regina in Chris Holmes, who took six wickets for twenty-eight runs in the second innings, Cameron and Wilson did all the bowling for the tourists, Cameron taking four for thirty-seven and Wilson six for twenty-seven. Regina batted eleven men.

During the day the visitors were feted by several sporting organizations.

COAST TRACK BOY IS STAR

Norman Bright, Bellingham, Sets Up New U.S. Record For Two-mile Run

New York, July 10.—A new star has appeared in the United States track firmament and his name is Bright.

Norman Bright, Bellingham, Wash., who wears the colors of the San Francisco Olympic Club, raced to a new United States two-mile record yesterday evening on the rain-soaked track of New York University at Ohio Field.

Bright, who said he never before had run the two-mile event in competition, amused timers before the race when he asked that his time be yelled to him as he passed each quarter mile marker. They had expected that the veteran Joe McCusker, New York A.C., would romp in first with plenty to spare.

Bright allowed McCusker to make the pace until the last lap when he breezed by the leader like a dash man and breasted the tape thirty yards in front in the new American time of 9 minutes 13.3 seconds. This was more than two seconds faster than the former mark of 9:15.4. Bright has been timed in the mile at 4:14.5. Hulace-Peacock, the latest negro speed sensation, turned in his third victory over Jesse Owens of Ohio state in the century dash, but Owens evened matters for the meet by taking the broad jump.

GREAT FINISH

After two false starts, Peacock broke rapidly in front. The Temple flyer opened up a gap of nearly two yards at the half-way mark before Owens struck his stride. The smooth-running "Buckeye Bullet" put on a characteristic finish, but just failed by a scant foot in 9.7 seconds. The "Buckeye Bullet" came back on a slippery take-off to square accounts in the broad jump with a leap of twenty-three feet, nine inches. Peacock's best was twenty-three feet, six and three-quarter inches.

Ivan Fuqua, Indiana, sprang an upset by decisively beating Eddie O'Brien of Syracuse, the national 400-meter champion, in a special 300-yard race.

O'Brien set the early pace, but was overtaken in the stretch by Fuqua, who won going away by three yards in 31.1 seconds.

"Reckless" At Capitol To-day

Jean Harlow Star of Fast-moving M-G-M Feature

Jerome Kern, dean of composers, takes his first bow as a composer of song hits written exclusively for the screen in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Reckless," co-starring Jean Harlow and William Powell and showing to-day at the Capitol Theatre.

Kern, with Oscar Hammerstein II, wrote the theme song, "Reckless," which with brilliant dance ensembles and a host of singing and dancing stars is one of the outstanding features of the production.

For Kern's initial number, Producer David O. Selznick has staged one of the largest entertainment spectacles ever recorded for the screen.

Against a continually changing background of gorgeous settings that carry Miss Harlow, as a singing and dancing star, from the heights of success and across oceans to a lovely Peruvian dive, several of the leading vocalists and dancers of New York and Europe were called to Hollywood for prominent roles in the musical number.

Carl Randall, sensational dancing star of Monte Carlo and other gay European centers, makes his screen debut as the dancing partner of Miss Harlow.

Miss Mae McKimney, spectacular "Crook" singer, was summoned from night-club triumphs in London to appear in the number, and Allan Jones, recent singing star of "Bitter Sweet" and other notable operettas, makes his picture debut during the number.

Directed by Victor Fleming, the "Reckless" cast also includes Franchot Tone and May Robson.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

That French sport, known as "la savate," is given a vivid workout in Warner Bros. production of "Kansas City Princess," now showing at the Columbia Theatre. Theatregoers who have never seen the art of "la savate" practiced, will get some idea of how it was when Coopey Perkins floors Robert Armstrong with it.

"La savate" is a form of fighting which is peculiar to the French.

Malnutrition Figures Differ

At Conference Dr. H. E. Young Denies 10,000 B.C. Children Suffer

Vancouver, July 10.—Questioning by B.C. municipality heads, inserted during discussion of social service work in the relation to the tuberculosis problem, featured yesterday's session of the tuberculosis conference.

Records and their availability to social workers was the first item considered. Comment on this rapidly merged into a general discussion, often controversial, on the whole social service.

OPINIONS DIFFER

A difference of opinion developed when E. E. Welch, M.P.P., for Burnaby, in the course of a short talk, made the statement there were 10,000 children suffering from malnutrition in British Columbia. This was challenged by Dr. H. E. Young, Provincial Health Officer, from whose report Mr. Welch said he was quoting.

The differences were ironed out by Hon. G. M. Weir, when the minister explained the difference between malnutrition and insufficient nutrition.

Dr. Weir advocated a centralization of control over the social service bodies, believing a lack of co-ordination was evident.

COST QUESTION

The division of payment as affecting municipalities raised an objection from Reeve William Crouch of Nanaimo, who did not see why his municipality should have to contribute for the expenses of a resident recently making his home there.

Another municipality head believed the problem to be a national one.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE
Responding to public demand, Warner Baxter has created a screen role more romantic than his famous "Circus Kid." The picture is "Under the Pampas Moon," now playing at the Dominion Theatre.
In the picture, which B. G. DeSylva produced for Fox Film and which was directed by James Tilling, Baxter takes the part of a South American gaucho, a cowboy of the great plains of the Argentine Republic. A nomad, a descendant of the bandit crew which roamed the pampas and raided villages before the railroad and civilization settled the country, the gaucho, is part Spanish and part Indian, controlled now but not tamed. He is a roistering, hard-riding sentimental fellow, inseparable from his horse, quick to fight and quick to forgive, careless in his love-making but true and chivalrous to the weaker sex.
Charles Laughton, proud of the distinction of being Hollywood's most casually-dressed man, surprised his friends recently by arriving at the Paramount studio looking like a fashion-plate.
The star, playing the title role in "Ruggles of Red Gap," now at the Playhouse Theatre, had on a costly brown suit and matching tie, shirt and socks, and a mirror-like polish to his shoes. And why had Laughton decided to dress up?
"I wanted to shock my friends," Laughton said. "I earned the reputation of being Hollywood's worst-dressed man. I'm heading the other way now—that is, until the press wears off my trousers."

Are Long Engagements Worth It? Dorothy Dix Discusses Arguments For and Against

THE LENGTH of an engagement generally depends upon outside circumstances rather than the desire of the high-contracting parties. Of course there are stories of dilatory suitors who have played around the altar, without ever making the grade, for fifteen or twenty years, presumably on the principle of the man who kept putting off his wedding because he said he would have no pleasant place in which to spend his evenings if he married his fiancée.

The impulse of most lovers, however, is to rush off to the church as quickly as possible, and so when the average couple of young people drag out the linked sweetness of a long engagement it is seldom because they have a morbid taste for a perpetual courtship, but because of material conditions.

Generally it is because they lack the price of a wedding ring or the man is going to some place to seek his fortune where a wife would be a handicap or he has not finished his professional training or there are family obligations—old fathers and mothers to be supported, younger brothers and sisters to be educated—that have made them put off the realization of love's young dream.

Inasmuch, then, as long engagements are almost always a matter of necessity and not of choice, it seems superfluous to discuss their effect upon marital happiness. Yet it is a question of our day, when, whether we like it or not, we have to consider the high cost of living.

Many a young man in these times of depression has to face the problem of whether to tell a girl of his love or conceal it and let it prey on his damaged cheque book. And many a girl has to decide on the wisdom of cutting herself off from all other chances of matrimony and entering into a waiting courtship, that has not time limit on it, with a man who may never make good on his end of the bargain.

Of course, as with everything else in life, there are two sides to the long engagement question and both have their points. One school of thought holds that the long engagement is desirable because it gives a couple a chance to really get to know each other so that they find out before the fatal knot is tied all of each other's little weaknesses and peculiarities and so are saved from the disillusioning revelations that wreck so many marriages.

They contend that no man could be engaged to a girl for four or five years without finding out whether she is a good or a bad person, whether she is a tightwad; whether he was considerate and tender or a selfish egotist; whether they like the same style of cooking and had the same taste in motion pictures.

That seems a reasonable argument in favor of the long engagement, but, alas! experience gives it the lie. For no matter how much a man and woman know each other before marriage, they find out after marriage that they are united to perfect strangers, when they are as little acquainted as if they had wed a mail-order individual that they had recognized by his or her wearing a white carnation on the left lapel.

Those who oppose the long engagement say truly that wedding cake, to have any flavor, must be eaten when it is hot out of the oven and that it grows stale and tasteless if kept too long. They say that a long engagement is an emotional strain beyond what human nature can bear, and that nine times out of ten it simply wears romance to tatters and rubs all the bloom off sentiment so that when a couple do marry the honeymoon has set, so to speak, before it ever rose.

They say that it puts a woman in a peculiarly hard position because she is neither fish, flesh, fowl nor good red herring. She is beset on yet not taken. She is cut off from the attentions of other men, yet she has no husband to depend upon. They say girls who enter into a long engagement get old and haggard before their time with the hope deferred that maketh the heart sick.

And they say that the man who asks a girl to wait for him when he starts out to seek fortune commits a crime against her and against himself because he inevitably changes in a new environment, and that when he does come back to marry his old sweetheart it is generally because of a sense of honor and not because he wants her, and they live unhappily ever afterward.

They say that the way to be happy though married is to pick out what you want when you want it, and that a long engagement is a mistake.

Uncle Wiggily's Water Surprise
By HOWARD K. GARIS
Uncle Wiggily, one hot day, had made a shower bath for the animal children up in a tree. I don't mean the animal children were up in a tree; I mean the shower bath was up in a tree. The animal children, Jack and Jumbo Kinkaid, the monkey boys, went up in a tree to fasten the hose and the big tin can which was the shower bath. When the bell was rung Uncle Wiggily pulled a string on the faucet of the hose so that whenever anyone wanted a bath of cool water on a hot day they had to do as he had done. The animal children, who were to stand under the tin can. Oh, yes, they had to do something else. They had to pull the cord, or else the water would pull it. That turned on the water. Fangle, Buntz and many of the other animal children were standing under the tin can full of water that was fastened in the tree. They pulled the string and down came splashing the water. It was fun, for they had on their bathing suits. Jumbo to stand under the shower bath. All of a sudden a voice from the bushes called: "What's this? What's gone on here?" "Oh, I must be about this," said Uncle Wiggily. "Maybe it's one of the bad boys BOB CAT." And it was; the Bob Cat had Chap! There he was, whiskers and all, sneaking out of the bushes up to where the animal children were having such merry fun with the shower bath. Only, just then, nobody was taking a bath. "What do you mean—making all this noise when I'm trying to sleep?" sneered the Bob Cat. "Oh, were we making a noise?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Well, I let you pull the string." "What kind of a noise?" the Bob Cat asked. "All kinds," sneered the Bob Cat. "I never heard such yelling and screaming and laughing and running up and down!" What's the cause of it? Uncle Wiggily didn't want to tell the Bob Cat about the tin can shower bath up in the tree that could be turned on by pulling a string. One Wiggily wanted to fool the Bob Cat and make him run away. Instead of telling the Bob Cat that the children had been having in the shower bath, Mr. Longears said: "I'm sorry if the noise awakened you. Will you please go away and sleep somewhere else?" "WON'T GO AWAY" "No, I will not!" sneered the Bob Cat. "Will you go away if I give you ten cents for two ice cream cones, and chocolate and one vanilla?" asked Mr. Longears. The Bob Cat thought for a moment and then he blinched his eyes and said: "No, I won't go away for ten ice cream cones." Uncle Wiggily saw it was not use to talk about ice cream, so he said: "Pull it and find out," said the rabbit. So the curious Bob Cat pulled the string of the shower bath, standing right under the tin can and down splashed a lot of water, much to his surprise, wetting him all over. And the Bob Cat gave one loud howl, crying: "Oh, it's a thunderstorm! Let me out of here!" And away he ran, as fast as he could. So if the gum drop will make an umbrella not the lilypond stick, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's sand bar. (Copyright, 1935, by H. K. Garis.)
